Anglian Bgde. R.F.A. (Terr.); son of 4th M.: b. Oct. 27, 1876; suc. 1898 (C.); mar. 1901 Hon. Myra Rowena Sibell Orde-Powlett, dau. of 4th Bn. Bolton. Seat, Burghley House, N'thants., nr. Stamford; town res., 114 Ashley Gdns., Westmr., S.W.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Burghley, 1572; E. of Exeter, 1605. U.K.: M. of Exeter, 1801.—The Rt. Hon. Sir Wm. Cecil, Sec. of State under Edwd. VI. and Elizabeth, and afterwards Lord High Treasurer and Chancellor of Cambridge University, was created Bn. Burghley; his elder son, his successor, was made Earl of Exeter, and the 10th Earl raised to the Marquessate (the younger son was made Earl of Salisbury). Tennyson's lyric ballad of "The Lord of Burleigh" (so he spells it) is founded upon fact, but in so slight a degree that the attaching of it to definite individuals was hardly justifiable, becoming as it does the falsification of an actual narrative: the characters ought to have been as imaginary as the incidents. So far from the hero of the story being the greatest Lord "in all the county," he was a plain "Mr.," and could have had no "majestic mansion" with which to surprise his bride. What is true is that in 1791 Henry Cecil, nephew and heir presumptive of the 9th Earl, but bearing at the time not even a courtesy-title, married (immediately after divorcing his first wife) the "village maiden," Sarah Hoggins of Bolas Magna, Salop. At that village they resided for two years until his accession to the Peerage made her a Countess; but she died in 1797, four years before his elevation to the Marquessate. Her daughter's daughter was mother of the late and present Dukes of Wellington. The "three fair children" is also correct, at least as far as enumeration goes; but beyond these few facts the story is simply a poetical dressing up.

FAUCONBERG and CONYERS, Baroness. Marcia Amelia Mary Pelham (née Lane-Fox), Bnss. 7th in Fauconberg line and 13th in that of Conyers (both Eng.), by marriage Countess of Yarborough, a Lady of Grace St. John Jerus.; dau. of 12th Bn. (Darcy and) Conyers: b. Oct. 18, 1863; title of Conyers (under which see note) called out of abeyance 1892, and that of Fauconberg 1903; mar. 1886 4th E. of Yarborough, under whom see for residences and heirs.

Creations. Eng.: Bn. Fauconberg, 1295 by writ; Bn. Conyers, 1509 by writ.—The 1st Bn., Walter de Fauconberg, is shown to have been summoned by Edward I. to a Parliamentary assembly at Shrewsbury in 1283 and again 1295, and he was one of the signatories to the letter of the Barons to the Pope in reference to the opposing claims of Edward and Boniface to be ruler of Scotland. The 6th Bn. was created Earl of Kent, but at his death in 1463 that title became extinct, and the Barony, which was strictly his wife's, fell at her decease into an abeyance of some four and a half centuries between their three daughters, the youngest of whom was wife of Sir Jno. Conyers. The son of these two, Sir Wm. Conyers, was created Bn. Conyers; he served at the siege of Norham Castle and at Flodden Field, and was Constable of Richmond and Middleham Castles. In the 18th century a Bnss. Conyers married the Marq. of Carmarthen, afterwards 5th Duke of Leeds, and the title remained in that Dukedom till 1859, when the death of the 7th Duke without issue or brother devolved the primary succession upon a cousin, but permitted the present Barony to pass to the son of his deceased sister. As stated under "Conyers," upon the death of the 12th Bn. of that title in 1888 an abeyance of four years ensued.

ff.—Note on the proper names commencing with ff or Ff:

The use of a double f, at the beginning of proper names, still affected by a few families, is merely a mistaken use in print of the written form of capital F which was in almost universal use, as a relic of mediæval script, up to the early part of last century. Most London leases, for instance, engrossed a century ago or even less, will show that not only proper names but all other nouns, which would have been printed with an initial F, were engrossed or written with a letter which in appearance amounts to two small f's intertwined. But there is no more reason why a man named "French" should have his name printed "ffrench" or "Ffrench," than that he should print ffreehold, ffire, fflodden-ffield or ffiea. In fact, the ancestors of every Briton, whose name begins with F to-day, wrote their names at one time with an intertwined "ff," although their names invariably appeared in print with a simple capital F. The Frenches, Farringtons, Folkes, Fieldens and Finches of to-day have thus no more warrant for affecting the double "f" in print than have the Fentons, Fields, Fosters, Frasers or any other family whose name begins with F. The whole mistake has arisen through their finding their names written in some old document with what they believed to be a double f, whereas in reality the letter was only the then usual form of a written capital F. To be logical, even in writing, these families should continue to write "the" as "ye."

Cliffe, Esq. Seats, Cumloden, Newton-Stewart, Wigtownsh.; GlenTrool Lodge, Bargrennan, Kirkcudbsh., nr. Newton-Stewart; town address, Prince's Hotel, 37 Jermyn St., S.W.

CREATIONS. Scot.: Ld. of Garlies, 1607; E. of Galloway, 1623. Gt. Br.: Bn. Stewart of Garlies, 1796. —This house is descended from Sir Wm. Stewart, who was made a Knight Banneret about 1305, was Clerk of Audit to the King, Ambassador to England, Sheriff of Teviotdale and "The Forest" (co. Selkirk), and figured as a Captain at Otterburn (Chevy Chase), but was afterwards captured at Homildon Hill and while in prison put to death by Hotspur. The family records have been destroyed by fire, but he is believed, as stated by Burke, to have been a younger son of Sir Alex. Stewart of Darnley, whose eldest son, Sir John, was ancestor of the Earls and Dukes of Lennox and of Lord Darnley, from whom descended the Stuart line of Kings. An earlier ancestor of the family was Alexander, 4th Hereditary Lord Steward of Scotland, who was granted the Barony (i.e., the estate) of Garlies in reward for his services in defeating the Danes in 1263; this passed to his wife, then to her son John, Earl of Moray, and by him it was transferred to his uncle Sir Walter Stewart, and eventually to a kinsman, the above Sir William. A later Sir Alexander was in 1607 made Lord of Garlies, and in 1623 advanced to the Earldom. His son the 2nd Earl was made a Bt. before succession, but the creation was cancelled 1632. The 7th Earl obtained the British Barony. All the elder branches having become extinct, the Earl of Galloway is now the recognised head of the house of Stewart.

GARDNER Barony (U.K. and Irel.). Succession contested between Alan Legge Gardner, b. 1831, and Alan Hyde Gardner, b. 1878.

Creations. A Bt. Gt. Br. 1794; Bn. Gardner, Irel. 1800, U.K. 1806.—Adm. Sir Alan Gardner, M.P. for Plymouth and Westminster, a Lord of the Admiralty, and a distinguished officer under Earl Howe, obtained successively all of these titles.

 The 3rd Bn. died in 1883 leaving no legitimate male issue. Contested claims to the succession are now advanced by two 2nd cousins, both great grandsons of the 2nd son of the 1st Bn. The claimant till lately supposed to stand alone was Alan Hyde, 2nd son of the 2nd son just named; but he died in 1899, leaving a son, the above claimant Alan Legge. But a rival claim is raised by another Alan Hyde, grandson of the 3rd son of the above 2nd son, whose father (d. 1901) bore the same name, and who bases his claim upon an alleged irregularity in the marriage of his rival's grandfather, Stewart Wm. Gardner, which was effected with an Indian Begum, a cousin of his own, her grandfather, Wm. Gardner, having married an Indian princess who was adopted as a daughter by the Emperor of Delhi. The late claimant himself, the father of Alan Legge, was the third to marry a native Indian girl, the ceremony being performed in their case by a Methodist minister in the house of the claimant's father. His late rival, the Alan Hyde who died in 1901, was an artist living at Ipswich, where he assumed the title of Baron. His son, of the same name, now continues the rivalry. There have been four Alan Hydes in the pedigree—the son of the 2nd son (d. 1899, father of the claimant Alan Legge), and the 3rd son, with his own son and grandson, the rival claimant.

Titled Relative.

Issue of 3rd Bn. (2nd cous. once rem. of Claimants):

GRAY, family name of the follg. Barony, q.v. for "Hons." (the Bnss. herself taking the name Smith-Gray as there explained). See "Gray (Stuart-)" below.

GRAY, BARONESS. EVELEEN Smith-Gray, Bnss. 19th in line (Scot.—see note): niece of 14th E. of Moray, and dau. of the late Lady Jane, wife of Jerem. Pounden, Esq., and dau. of 10th E.; b. May 3, 1841; suc. to Barony of Gray (de jure) 1895, claim established 1896; mar. 1863 the late Jas. Maclaren Smith, Esq. (d. 1900), of Hazelgreen, Lancs., who with herself assumed, 1897, the addit. name of Gray, their issue to take this latter name only.

Seat, Brownswood, Enniscorthy, Co. Wexford; town res., 14 The Boltons, S. Kensington, S.W.

CREATION. Ld. Gray, Scot. 1444.—The present Bnss. is sometimes given as the 20th in line. The contested point is whether it was Sir Andrew Gray (Kt.) or his untitled son of the same Christian name who was originally summoned as Ld. Gray; 'Burke' says distinctly the latter, and as the Union Roll places the Barony after that of Saltoun, created 1445, and as neither 'Burke' nor 'Debrett' goes earlier than 1444 as its starting-point, whereas the knighted Sir Andrew died in 1438, we are compelled in consistency to call this the 19th Barony, though possibly 'Foster' ('Lodge') may be right in dating it "before 1437." It was a matter of dispute almost at its beginning. On the death of the Bnss. 17th in line the succession devolved upon her 2nd cousin, the 14th Earl of Moray, by whom the Barony was held from 1878 till his death without issue, when the former title was released by the succession of his niece.

GREY, Maj. RALEIGH, C.M.G. (1896), Zululd. 1888, late Lt.-Col. comdg. Bechuanald. Border Police; sentenced to five months' imprisonment for taking part in the Jameson Raid, served in S. Africa 1900-1, ret. 1904: b. 1860 (a gt. grandson as his 1st cousin the preceding).

GREY DE RUTHYN, BARON. RAWDON GEORGE GREY Clifton, 24th Bn. (Eng.), Hereditary Bearer of the Golden Spur at Coronations: son of Aug. Wykeham Clifton, Esq., and Bnss. G. de R. 23rd in line (the Barony having been in abeyance 1868-85, when determined in her favour); b. Nov. 14, 1858; suc. 1887 (C.); mar. 1892 the late Evelyn Isobel Ida Charlotte (d. 1905), dau. of Jas. Foster, Esq., of Windsor. Seat, Bellews Grove, Mt. Bellew, Co. Galway.

CREATION. Bn. Grey de Ruthyn, Eng. 1324 by writ (see "Hastings, Marquessate," close of note).—The 1st Bn. by writ was Roger de Grey, who, according to 'Nicolas,' was son of the 3rd feudal Bn. Grey of Codnor (a line abeyant from 1496); but 'Burke' gives him as 2nd son of the 2nd Bn. Grey de Wilton (this line persisting till attainted in 1603 and eventually revived 1801 on the creation of the Wilton Earldom). The 4th to the 11th Bns. Grey de Ruthyn were also Earls of Kent, but this title passed to a cousin, one of whose descendants was made Marq. and Duke of Kent; but upon his death in 1740 all three titles expired, and the next appearance of the Dukedom was on its bestowal in 1799 on the father of our late Queen. Then we find the 17th Bn. Grey de Ruthyn created in 1717 Earl of Sussex, but that title lasted only to the 3rd Earl and 19th Bn. The Bnss. 21st in line married the 2nd Marq. of Hastings, their elder son succeeding to that title but dying before his mother; the 2nd son became 4th Marq. and 22nd Bn., but died without issue, the Marquessate expiring and the Bny. going into abeyance between his sisters.

CREATIONS. Bn. of Guilford, Eng. 1683; E. of Guilford, Gt. Br. 1752. "Lord North" is used as the courtesy-title of an eld. son, but it is unfortunate that the absence of any distinctive second title to the Earldom brings this into confusion with that of Bn. North.—Sir Francis North (Kt.), 2nd son of 4th Bn. North, a distinguished lawyer who had been Attorney-General and Lord Chief Justice of Common Pleas, was appointed Lord Keeper of the Great Seal and granted the Barony of Guilford. The 3rd Bn. succeeded as 7th Bn. North and was elevated to the Earldom. On the death of the 3rd Earl in 1802 the North Barony passed into abeyance between daughters until liberated as a distinct Peerage in 1841; the Guilford titles then went to a brother.

Force Assoc., Vice-Lieut. of Berwicksh., was High Sheriff of Cheshire 1871; is Capt. Roy. Co. of Archers, and Hon. Col. Lothians and Border Horse (Yeom.), an A.D.C. to H.M.; son of 10th E.: b. July 26, 1827; assumed name of Arden (see Creations) after Baillie 1858, before succession, his father taking the addition Hamilton in the next year (this being the orig. surname of the family, for which the grandfather of that Peer had substituted Baillie); suc. 1870 (C.); mar. 1854 the late Helen Catherine (d. 1889), dau. of Sir Jno. Warrender, 5th Bt. Seats, Tyninghame House, Prestonkirk, Haddingtonsh.; Jerviswoode, Lanark; Arderne Hall, Tarporley, Cheshire.

Creations. Scot.: Bn. of Binning and Byres, 1613: E. of Haddington, 1619.—Sir Thos. Hamilton, a Lord of Session (as Lord Drumcairn), and afterwards Secretary of State, was successively awarded these two Peerages, the Earldom at first under the title of Melrose, but this was changed to Haddington by a new patent in 1627, retaining the original precedence. The 2nd Earl, who took the side of the Covenanters against the tyranny of King Charles and Laud, was in 1640 blown up in his castle by the treacherous connivance of one or more of those from within. The family name is variable, but from the examples below it appears that the addition of Arden is restricted to the line of succession.

Hered. Keeper of Holyrood House, a D.L. for Lanarksh., Hon. Col. 6th Batt. Scot. Rifles (Terr.), formerly Lieut. R.N.; 4th cousin of 12th D. and son of Chas. Henry Douglas-Hamilton (a descendant of the 4th D. through his 3rd son, Lord Anne, named after Qn. Anne, who was his godmother): b. March 6, 1862; suc. 1895 (C.); mar. 1901 Nina Mary Benita, dau. of Maj. Robt. Poore. Seats, Hamilton Palace, Lanarksh.; Dungavel, Strathaven, same Co.; East Knoyle Ho., Salisbury.

CREATIONS. Scot.: E. of Angus, 1389; M. of Douglas and Ld. Abernethy and Jedburgh Forest, 1633; D. of Hamilton, M. of Clydesdale, E. of Arran Lanark, and Cambridge, and Ld. Aven, Polmont, Machanshire, and Innerdale, 1643; (for E. of Selkirk and Bn. Daer and Shortcleuch, 1646 and 1688, see end of 4th paragraph). Gt. Br.: D. of Brandon and Bn. Dutton, 1711. France: D. of Châtelhérault, 1864.—The Dukes of Hamilton are descended on the male side from the Earls of Douglas, and on the female from the Lords Hamilton (themselves successors to the Lords of Cadzow); whilst from a younger son of these same Lords Hamilton (by that time become Earls of Arran) the Abercorn house takes its origin, the Duke of Abercorn being thus constituted male head of the house of Hamilton, whilst the Duke of Hamilton is head of that of Douglas. This statement by itself points to a complicated history, and the numerous additional titles bestowed upon each branch render the account still more needful of very careful analysis.

The extinct Earldom of Douglas was awarded in 1357 to Sir Wm. Douglas, who had distinguished himself at Poictiers and in other battles. The line became extinct on the death of the 9th Earl in 1488. But the 1st Earl had also a natural son by Margaret, Countess of Angus in her own right, and through their descendants the Angus Earldom has been continued to the present day; the 11th Earl was in 1633 made Marq. of Douglas, the 3rd Marquess in 1703 made Duke of Douglas (a title that expired with himself), and the 2nd son of the 1st Marquess created in 1646 Earl of Selkirk. He married Anne, Duchess of Hamilton in her own right, and thus brought the Dukedom into the Douglas family.

We must now return to the house of Hamilton. It was apparently about 1295 that Sir Walter FitzGilbert Hamilton was given by King Robert Bruce the feudal Lordship of Cadzow, and in 1445 the 6th holder of that title was created Lord Hamilton; the 2nd Lord was made Earl of Arran, and the brother of the 3rd Earl promoted to be Marq. of Hamilton, the son of this last succeeding both as Marquess and Earl, and the 3rd Marquess becoming 1st Duke. This last Peer was succeeded by his brother, who fell in 1651 at the Battle of Worcester, when by a special remainder the Dukedom passed to the above Anne, daughter of the 1st Duke, whose marriage with the Earl of Selkirk has just been narrated. The Earl was himself granted the title of Duke of Hamilton for life, upon which he surrendered the Earldom, and his wife shortly afterwards surrendered the whole of her own titles, so that every Peerage in the direct Hamilton line became temporarily extinct. All of these, however, with the exception of the Hamilton Marquessate and the Cadzow and Hamilton Lordship, were re-created by a new patent in 1698, assigning to them all equally the precedence of 1643.

The subsidiary titles must now be accounted for. In 1619 the 2nd Marq. of Hamilton received the English Peerages of Earl of Cambridge and Bn. Innerdale. These, after lasting some 33 years, expired with the 2nd Duke at Worcester, but they had already been doubled to his predecessor, as Scottish honours, in the original creation of the Dukedom in 1643, excepting only that "Innerdale" (in Cumberland) was then corrupted into "Innerdale." The 2nd Duke and 4th Marquess had in 1639, before his accession to those titles, been granted the honours of Earl of Lanark and Ld. Polmont and Machanshire; and though these lapsed at his death they were renewed in the patent of 1698. The 1643 creation had run—Duke of Hamilton, Marq. of Clydesdale, Earl of Arran and Cambridge, and Ld. Avon and Innerdale—the Marquessate and the Avon Lordship (so spelt in that patent) being new creations together with the Dukedom, whilst the Arran Earldom was ancient, and the remaining two honours have just been detailed. The 1698 patent, bearing the 1643 precedency, consequently repeated all these with the additional three just mentioned as having been borne by the 2nd Duke. But meantime the titles of the house of Douglas had not been interfered with by the surrender, and they consequently remained in that line until the death in 1761 of the 3rd Marq. of Douglas (the one Duke of that title), when they passed to the 7th Duke of Hamilton as direct heir to the Earl of Selkirk, son by 2nd marriage of the 1st Marq. of Douglas. This Marquessate, therefore, with its subordinate honours of Ld. Abernethy and Jedburgh Forest, as also the old Douglas title of Earl of Angus, now came into the Hamilton line, and extended the already long list of Scottish honours of the 7th Duke to—Duke of Hamilton, Marq. of Douglas and Clydesdale, Earl of Angus, Arran, Lanark, and Cambridge, and Ld. Aven, Polmont, Machanshire, Innerdale, Abernethy, and Jedburgh Forest; even to these are to be added the British titles, conferred on the 4th Duke, of Duke of Brandon and Bn. Dutton. The Earl of Selkirk's surrendered titles, comprising with the Earldom the Lordship of Daer and Shortcleuch, were renewed by a fresh patent in 1688, with the original precedency of 1646; but by a special limitation to his 2nd son, with a proviso, says Burke, that if such son succeeded to the Dukedom, the title should pass to his next brother. Hence these titles are in abeyance, and Lord Geo. Nigel Douglas-Hamilton stands to succeed to them on the death of the present Duke.

The incidents in this long double line are numerous, and to keep our historical statement clearer we have left such of them as seem of interest to the close. The 1st Earl of Douglas married Margaret, Countess of Mar, and held that Earldom in his wife's right; it passed at his death to his daughter Isabel, who married into the Erskine family, with whom that title has remained to this day. Her brother, who succeeded as 2nd Earl of Douglas, married a daughter of King Robert III.; he figured as one of the heroes of "Chevy Chace" (the Battle of Otterburn, 1388), in which himself, though victor, was slain, whilst on the other side "Hotspur" and another son of "the stout Earl of Northumberland" were taken prisoners. He left no legitimate issue, but his natural son, William, was ancestor of the Queensberry line, whilst the Earl's half-brother, natural son of the 1st Earl, was through his mother the 1st of the Earls of Angus, the 11th of whom, who is stated to have lived in great magnificence at the Castle of Douglas, was raised to a Marquessate by that title (the Douglas Earldom having then been long extinct). Turning to the Hamilton line, we find that upon the death of James V. in 1542, the 2nd Earl of Arran was chosen Regent of Scotland, and in the next year declared heir presumptive to the Crown: he was also made Duc de Châtelhérault by Henry II. of France. He left four sons, of whom the eldest succeeded as 3rd Earl, but became insane through rejection of his proposal of marriage to Mary, Queen of Scots; the second son was created Marq. of Hamilton—a title which has dropped from the Scottish Peerage, though renewed in that of Ireland to the Dukes of Abercorn; the 4th son, the founder of this last line, was created Ld. of Paisley. The 1st Duke of Hamilton had been elevated from the Marquessate for his devotion to Charles I., but was beheaded in 1649 by the Parliamentarians; his brother and successor was slain at Worcester in the cause of the 2nd Charles. The 4th Duke, who received the British Dukedom of Brandon, fought a duel with Ld. Mohun, in which he slew his antagonist, but was immediately slain himself through the treachery of the other's second, Gen. or Col. Macartney, who was found guilty of manslaughter. For the Châtelhérault succession, see that article.

HAMPDEN, VISCOUNT. Maj. THOMAS WALTER Brand, 3rd Visc. (U.K.), 10th Hussars retd., afterwards a Brig.-Maj. Terr. Force, served in S. Africa 1899, was an Assist. Priv. Sec. to Earl Cawdor at the Admiralty 1905; son of 2nd Visc.: b. Jan. 29, 1869; suc. 1906 (L.U.); mar. 1899 Lady KatharineMary Montagu-Douglas-Scott, dau. of 6th D. of Buccleuch. Seat, The Hoo, Welwyn, Herts.

CREATIONS. Bn. Dacre, Eng. 1321 by writ; Visc. Hampden, U.K. 1884.—Ranulph de Dacre, a distinguished soldier, was in the reign of Edward II. summoned to Parliament as 1st Bn. Dacre. In consequence of female succession, the surname changed from time to time, but that of Brand was brought in by the marriage in 1771 of the Bnss. 19th in line. The 9th Bn. was executed for being concerned in a deer-stealing affair in the course of which one of the keepers was killed. The 15th Bn. was made Earl of Sussex, but the title expired with himself in 1715, and was re-created in 1717 in the Grey de Ruthyn line. That of Teynham was also briefly associated by the 2nd marriage of the 18th Bnss. The Viscty. was awarded to the Rt. Hon. Sir Henry W. Brand, G.C.B., Speaker of the House of Commons 1872-84; six years after retirement he succeeded his brother as 23rd Bn. Dacre. The illustrious John Hampden, the patriot, was one of the ancestors of the family in which this later Peerage was created, and out of which same family, as above stated, the present Viscty. has grown. One of the daughters married Sir Jno. Trevor, and a grandson of this pair, who had assumed the name of Hampden, succeeded to an early Trevor Bny. and was in 1776 created Visc. Hampden. But both these titles became extinct, though the Viscty. is now revived.

Creations. Eng. : Bn. Hastings, 1295 (by writ) ; a Bt. 1660.—Sir Henry de Hastings appears to have been the first to receive the above writ of summons, but the recognised founder of the family was Sir Thos. de Astley, one of the Barons who fought at Evesham against Henry III., and whose family became eventually united by marriage with that of Hastings. From the death of the 5th Bn. (3rd and last Earl of Pembroke in that line) in 1391 this Peerage was in abeyance for 450 years, till in 1841 this condition was terminated by the awarding of the title to Sir Jacob Astley, 6th Bt., who is now accounted to have been the 16th Bn., though the ten intermediate names are not supplied, and obviously are made up of those who never held the title in their lifetime.

CREATIONS. Ld. Headley, Bn. Allanson and Winn, Irel. 1797; a Bt. Eng. 1660 and Gt. Br. 1776.—Sir Geo. Winn, who had previously been created 1st Bt. of the 2nd creation (he was descended from the 2nd son of his namesake of the 1st), was raised to the Irish Peerage by this compound title. The 'Peerages' have stated that he in 1776 assumed by licence the surname Allanson, and "Allanson-Winn" also appears in 'Burke's' reprint of the Irish Roll. But his Lordship writes us expressly that "no previous Peer was ever styled Allanson-Winn," but that Winn (orig. Wynn) they have "never dropped." Allanson is part of his own Christian name, though the heir presumptive has adopted the compound form. It would appear that the licence was obtained, but never made use of in practice.

Mary Anna Morgan, dau. of 1st Bn. Tredegar. Seats, Ashford Hall, Ludlow; Tregoyd, Three Cocks, Brecknocksh. (occupied by eld. son).

CREATIONS. Eng.: Visc. Hereford, 1550; a Bt. 1611.—There were Earls of Hereford from feudal times, the first recorded by Nicolas being the Count of Bretville in Normandy, commander of the van of the Conqueror's army at Hastings. Then we have Henry de Bohun (creation 1199), one of the 25 "Barons" appointed to enforce the observance of Magna Charta. His line became extinct in 1372, and in 1397 Henry Plantagenet, afterwards Henry IV., was made Duke of Hereford. This title was merged in the Crown, but that of Earl of Hereford was used conjointly with Northampton, Buckingham, and Perche, apparently without warrant, by Humphrey, Earl of Stafford, afterwards Duke of Buckingham (creation of 1444). The Viscty. now subsisting was conferred upon the 3rd Bn. Ferrers in recognition of his services in the French wars of Henry VIII. That Barony after a while fell into abeyance, but was revived as a separate Peerage, and eventually made into the present Earldom of that title, q.v. The 2nd Visc. Hereford was promoted to be Earl of Essex and of Ewe, the 2nd Earl being the unfortunate favourite of Queen Elizabeth; this title, however, lapsed on the death of the 3rd Earl, the distinguished General in the Parliamentary Army, simultaneously with the passing of the above Ferrers Barony into abeyance. The late 15th Visc. Hereford was an Hon. Canon of Durham.

HERRIES, BARONESS. GWENDOLEN MARY Fitzalan-Howard, Bnss. 12th in line, by mrrge. Duchess of Norfolk: dau. of 11th Bn.; b. Jan. 11, 1877; suc. 1908; mar. 1904, as 2nd wife, the 15th D. of Norfolk, K.G., q.v.

CREATIONS. Ld. Herries, Scot. 1490.—Herbert Herries was by James IV. created 1st Scottish Ld. (the U.K. Bny. is extinct). The 7th Ld. became by his father's marriage 3rd Earl of Nithsdale; but the 9th Ld. and 5th Earl forfeited both his honours on being taken prisoner at Preston Pans in 1715, and would have been executed but for the aid of his wife in effecting his escape from the Tower. The Earldom lapsed altogether, but the Barony was revived by decision of the House of Lords in 1858 when Wm. Constable-Maxwell was awarded the title as 10th Bn. (Debrett, by counting the intermediate successors, makes him the 13th). The late 11th Bn. received a U.K. peerage, but it expired on his death without male issue. Female succession had changed the surname from Herries to Maxwell and then Constable; the father of the 10th Bn. (himself excluded by the attainder) assumed the recent compound form, but it now once more changes in the case of the present Peeress and her issue.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Conway of Ragley, 1703. Gt. Br.: E. of Hertford and Visc. Beauchamp, 1750; M. of Hertford and E. of Yarmouth, 1793. Irel.: Bn. Conway (of Killultagh), 1712.—Fras. Seymour-Conway was recipient of the English and Irish Baronies, having property in both kingdoms; he was 4th son of Sir Edwd. Seymour, Speaker of the Long Parliament, one of whose grandsons (by an elder son) inherited the Somerset Dukedom (8th Duke). The 2nd Bn. obtained the Hertford Earldom and eventually the Marquessate. A previous Earldom and Marquessate of Hertford had existed, the former lasting 1559-1750 (when it was re-created as above) and the latter 1640-75. Similarly the Earldom of Yarmouth is the revival of a former Peerage, Sir Robt. Paston, 1st Bt., having had that title bestowed upon him in 1679; but it expired with his son in 1732.

HOWARD (FITZALAN-), family name of Norfolk Dukedom and of Herries and Howard of Glossop Baronies (see Index to "Howard," above).

HOWARD de WALDEN, Baron. Thomas Evelyn Ellis, 8th Bn. Howard de Walden (Eng.) and 4th Bn. Seaford (U.K.); Maj. 2nd Co. of Lond. Yeom., late Lieut. 10th Hussars, served in S. Africa 1899-1900: son of 7th Bn.; b. May 9, 1880; suc. 1899 (C.); unmrrd. Res., Kilmarnock, N.B.; Audley End, Saffron-Walden (leased from Lord Braybrooke); Seaford House, 37 Belgrave Sq., S.W.

Creations. Bn. Howard de Walden, Eng. 1597 by writ; Bn. Seaford, U.K. 1826.—Lord Thos. Howard, K.G., son of the 4th Duke of Norfolk, was created Bn. Howard de Walden and six years later Earl of Suffolk: he is stated to have been mainly instrumental in discovering the Gunpowder Plot. On the death of the 3rd Earl that title went to a brother; but the Barony, being a creation by writ, passed into abeyance between two daughters, and so continued from 1689 to 1784, shortly after which it devolved upon the 4th Earl of Bristol as 5th Bn. On the death of this nobleman in 1803—his eldest son as well as the daughter and sole child of that son being both deceased—the Barony passed to the son of that daughter, who had married Chas. Rose Ellis, 1st Bn. Seaford; but the Earldom went to the Earl's 2nd son, subsequently created 1st Marq. of Bristol. The 4th Bn. Howard, a Field-Marshal in the Army (successor to the 3rd Earl of Suffolk), was created Bn. Braybrooke, but on his decease without issue that title parted off as a separate Peerage. The 6th Bn. was Minister at Stockholm, Lisbon, and Brussels. The family name has been successively Howard, Whitwell-Griffin, Hervey, and Ellis.

CREATIONS. Gt. Br.: Bn. Howe, 1788; Earl Howe, 1821. U.K.: Visc. Curzon, 1802; Earl Howe, 1821. —Adm. Howe, 4th Visc. and 1st Earl Howe of two lapsed titles, was created Bn. Howe with remainder open to females. This saved the title from extinction, for Sophia, Bnss. Howe, was shortly married to the eldest son of Assheton Curzon, who had meantime been created Bn. and Visc. Curzon. The son of this pair succeeded to the titles of both his grandfather and his mother, and was awarded the revived title of Earl Howe, and assumed the additional surname Howe, which only the youngest of his sons now adopts (the 7th, who is deceased, took that of Curzon-Smyth). See "Howe (Curzon-)" below on the variations.

HOWTH EARLDOM (Irel. 1767), extinct 1909 on death of 4th Earl—surname St. Lawrence.

 In its original form this was a very ancient Peerage, the Irish Barony dating from about 1430, though the Earldom with the St. Lawrence Viscty. began only in 1767; still later a U.K. Barony of Howth was conferred on the late Earl in 1881. We learn of the origin of the line that Sir Amoricus Tristram, who, together with his brother-in-law Sir Jno. de Courcy, had gained a victory over the Irish, was in 1177 awarded the lands and Barony of Howth, but was afterwards slain with his entire force. The sword with which he fought is still preserved at Howth Castle. The 15th and 16th Bns. by tenure were each appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland, the one in 1483 and the other in 1509. The 20th Bn. was known as "The Blind Lord." The 27th Bn. was created Earl and Viscount.

Hastings de Hastings 1461, but that title is now merged in the Earldom of Loudoun; it is quite distinct from the still-existing and even older Barony of Hastings). "Visc. Hastings" is still used as the courtesy-title of an eld. son.—The 1st Bn. was Sir Wm. de Hastings, made a K.G., Lord Chamberlain, Master of the Mint, &c., to Edward IV., but afterwards beheaded by Richard III. The 3rd Baron was made an Earl by Henry VIII., whom he had accompanied on a French campaign. The 2nd Earl's youngest daughter, Lady Mary Hastings, was wooed by proxy for the Emperor of Russia, but the marriage never took place. The wife of the 9th Earl was the Countess so well known as the foundress of a nonconformist body. The 10th Earl died childless in 1789, when the Baronies of Hastings, Botreaux, &c., went to his sister the Ctss. of Moira, and from her to the Loudoun Earldom.

CREATIONS. Scot.: E. of Huntly, 1445, confirmed 1450; M. of Huntly and E. of Enzie, 1599; E. of Aboyne and Ld. Gordon of Strathavon and Glenlivet, 1660.

U.K.: Bn. Meldrum, 1815.—Alex. Seton, who married the heiress of the Gordon house, was made a Lord of Parliament as Ld. Gordon in or about 1437, and his son of the same name (who, with his brothers, reverted to the ancestral name of Gordon) was created Earl of Huntly in 1445; but the legal settlement was not effected till 1450, and is reckoned from George, son of the latter, called 2nd Earl (the Gordon Lordship being wholly dropped). The 6th of this line obtained the Marquessate. The Aboyne Earldom, with the revived title of Ld. Gordon, was conferred upon the 4th son of the 2nd Marquess, ancestor of the present Peer; whilst the U.K. Barony of Meldrum fell to the lot of the 9th Marquess. There was formerly a Dukedom of Gordon attached to this line (Scot. 1684-1836); it was given to the 4th Marq. and it continued till the death of the 8th, being eventually revived in 1876 and conferred upon the Duke of Richmond. The 2nd Marq., who was beheaded for his zeal for the Royal cause, had been created Visc. Aboyne, with remainder to his 2nd son, at whose death unmarried that title expired. A Lordship of Aboyne, together with the title Visc. Melgum, was conferred upon a brother of the 2nd Marq., but these titles came to an end through the death of their holder in the burning of Frendraght Tower.

CREATIONS. U.K.: A Bt. 1821; Bn. Hylton, 1866.—The title of Bn. was conferred upon Capt. the Rt. Hon. Sir Wm. G. Hylton Jolliffe, 1st Bt., M.P. for Petersfield, representative (as senior co-heir) of an ancient line which began with Robert de Hilton, first summoned by writ in 1295, but at whose death the title fell into abeyance. Long previous even to this, however, and before the process of creation by writ had commenced, there were Barons Hilton of Hilton Castle, Co. Durham, whose title was held either by tenure or else by courtesy as "Barons of the Bishopric," described in Burke's "Extinct Peerages" as "sitting with a sort of provincial peerage in the Great Council of their ecclesiastical Palatine." The use of this title was continued up to the death in 1746 of Jno. Hilton, M.P. for Carlisle. Another Hilton Barony, apparently an offshoot of the preceding, was conferred upon Alexander de Hilton in 1332, but his daughter married Roger Widdington, one of whose descendants was made Bn. Widdington, so that this Hilton Barony became amalgamated with his own, and an attainder of the 4th Bn. W. in 1716 involved the extinction of this Hilton Barony. See note under "Jolliffe" as to the correct family name.

JOLLIFFE, family name of HYLTON Barony, q.v. for "Hons."

 The name is very frequently printed as Hylton-Jolliffe, but this we are authorised to say is a mistake. The grandfather of the 1st Bn. married into the Hylton family and added its arms to his own, whilst the name was by the first two Peers appended to the Christian names of the males; hence the wrong impression, shared apparently by even some near friends of the family.

 Connected with this Peerage there were three Baronies of Keith, two of which survived until 1867. The Barony of Nairne went by inheritance to the last Buss. Keith, who married the Comte de Flahault. Their eldest daughter, Emily Jane (who on her mother's death became Buss. Nairne in her own right, but not Buss. Keith, for both the remaining Baronies under that title had been devised only to her mother and issue male), married the 4th M. of Lansdowne, thus transmitting the Nairne Barony to his heirs.

KINGSALE, BARON. MICHAEL CONSTANTINE de Courcy, 33rd Bn. (PREMIER BARON of Ireland): son of 32nd Bn.; b. May 8, 1855; suc. 1895; mar. 1880 his 1st cousin, Emily Frances Anne, dau. of the late Wm. Sinclair de Courcy, Esq. Seat, The Grange, Marle Hill, Cheltenham.

CREATION. Irel.: Bn. of Kingsale and Bn. of Ringrone, 1172 by tenure, stated to have been confirmed by patent 1397.—Sir John de Courcy, an English Knight, the famous founder of the family, is celebrated as having, in conjunction with his brother-in-law Sir Almericus Tristram (who obtained the tenure Barony of Howth), effected the conquest of Ulster; and again, after having given offence to King John, as having acted as English champion in a single combat with the champion of France (who however fled without striking a blow), thus regaining his sovereign's favour. The King, we are told in 'Burke, had actually imprisoned him for a year; but upon receipt of the challenge from France, and finding no one else ready to accept it, Sir John was liberated for the purpose, with the above result of his antagonist being seized with panic and taking to flight. The two monarchs fraternised over this event, and joined in desiring to see an exhibition of Sir John's strength, upon which he cleft a massive helmet in twain at a single blow. This exploit so delighted his master that he asked him to choose whatever he should give him; whereupon the Knight replied that he had estates and titles enough, and would ask the privilege, for himself and all successors, of remaining covered in the royal presence. He died in 1219, apparently without issue, but soon after his death the Baronies of Kingsale and Ringrone are stated to have been granted to his kinsman, Miles de Courcy. The title of Earl of Ulster (q.v.) appears never to have been held by this line.

KINLOSS, BARONESS. MARY Morgan-Grenville (née Temple-Nugent-Brydges-Chandos-Grenville), Bnss. 11th in line (Scot.), C.I.: dau. of 3rd D. of Buckingham and Chandos (extinct), on whose death she succeeded to the only one of his titles which could descend to a female (see "Cobham, V." and "Temple of Stowe, E.," on the part-female succession of those titles); b. Sept. 30, 1852; suc. 1889; mar. 1884 the late Maj. Luis Ferdinand H. C. Morgan, who with herself subsequently assumed the additional name of Grenville, the last of her former five surnames (d. 1896). Seats, Stowe House and Moreton Ldg. (Maids Moreton), both nr. Buckingham.

CREATION. Ld. Kinloss, Scot. 1602 (see "Buckingham Dukedom").—Sir Edwd. Bruce (Kt.), who was twice Scottish Ambassador to England, was 1st Ld. Kinloss, the 3rd Ld. being made Earl of Elgin, and the 4th, Earl of Ailesbury, whilst the 7th, by a shifting of the line, was the 3rd Duke of Chandos. All these and other titles have either lapsed or separated off, leaving the Kinloss Barony wholly to itself. The present Bnss. is called by some authorities the 8th in line, and correctly as far as assumption of the title decides. On the death of the 6th Bn. (who was also 4th Earl of Elgin) the succession devolved upon the 3rd Duke of Chandos (last of the line extinct 1789), who never assumed the title, nor did his daughter and heiress, who married the 1st Duke of Buckingham and Chandos of the line created 1822, nor again their son the 2nd Duke (to whom the succession de jure passed from his mother), so that the 3rd Duke had in 1868 to substantiate his claim to the Barony before the House of Lords.

Creations. Scot.: Ld. Falconer, 1647; E. of Kintore and Ld. Keith of Inverurie, 1677, with succession to heirs female in default of male. U.K.: Bn. Kintore, 1838. "Lord Inverurie" is the courtesy-title of the heir when a firstborn son.—Sir Wm. Keith was created Earl Marischal of Scotland about 1458, and this honour passed by hereditary descent like that of Earl Marshal in England. The 3rd son of the 6th Earl Marischal, the Hon. Sir Jno. Keith, was in 1660 made Hereditary Knight Marischal of Scotland in recognition of his having concealed and so preserved the Scottish regalia during the Civil War; and in 1677 the above Earldom and Lordship were added. The 2nd Earl, however, joined in the rebellion of 1715, for which he was deprived of the Knight Marischalship, though of that only. But his relative the 10th Earl Marischal, who had participated in the same rebellion, was attainted, so that on coming to succeed in 1761 to the Peerage titles he was disqualified and they remained suspended till his death. A daughter of the above 2nd Earl, however, had married the 5th Ld. Falconer (a title originally conferred upon a son of Sir Alex. Falconer), and their grandson Anthony Adrian, 6th Ld., now became 5th Earl of Kintore. So the matter is stated in 'Burke,' but the present Peer regards the predecessor of this last as an actual holder of the title, and thus considers himself the 10th Earl. The U.K. Barony was granted to the Earl ordinarily accounted the 7th.

Kerry; town res., Lansdowne House, 54 Berkeley Sq., W.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Ld. of Kerry and Lixnaw, 1172, by tenure; E. of Kerry and Visc. Clanmaurice, 1723; Visc. Fitzmaurice and Bn. Dunkeron, 1751; E. of Shelburne, 1753. Scot.: Bn. Nairne, 1681, restored 1824 (the Barony of Keith, once attached to this, has been extinct from 1857). Gt. Br.: Ld. Wycombe, Bn. of Chipping Wycombe, 1760; M. of Lansdowne, E. of Wycombe, and Visc. Calne and Calstone, 1784.—One of the three triple Peerages (INTROD. p. 41). Under that of Ireland, which is much the earliest, we find Thos. Fitzmaurice, grandson of a sister of Strongbow, being made 1st Ld. of Kerry and Lixnaw, the 21st Lord obtaining the Earldom with its accompanying Viscounty. The second son of the latter was created Visc. Fitzmaurice and Bn. Dunkeron, shortly afterwards Earl of Shelburne, and still later Bn. Wycombe in the Peerage of G.B. Britain. His son, the 2nd Earl of Shelburne, who was a General in the Army, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and eventually Prime Minister, obtained the Marquessate with the associated British titles. The 3rd Marq. was Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lord President of the Council, afterwards till 1858 a Cabinet Minister without portfolio. The Scottish Barony of Nairne, as stated in the text, has only come to this house through the marriage of the present Peer's father (4th Marq., K.G., Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) with the late Baroness. This last Peerage was originally conferred upon Robt. Nairne, an advocate, who had been imprisoned ten years for fidelity to the house of Stuart, but whose successor, by remaining steadfast to that line and refusing allegiance to William III., forfeited the title, which was only restored in 1824. A great granddaughter of the 2nd Bn. married the only Visc. Keith, and their daughter in 1837 succeeded as Bnss. Nairne and Keith on the death of the 6th Bn. N.; but the K. title expired at her own death, being limited to herself and heirs male.—The surname Petty, now practically disused, is derived from Sir Wm. Petty (father of the 1st Earl of Kerry's wife), who was distinguished by accomplishing (1664-6) the survey of a large portion of Ireland; the name was first assumed by his grandson, the above 1st Earl of Shelburne.

LAURIE, BARONETCY of an older Maxwelton line (Scot. 1685), deemed extinct 1848, but now assumed as 10th Bt. by Henry Alfred Laurie (of Shalford, Surrey). He states that he is descended from a 3rd son of the 1st Bt., but the pedigrees at the College of Arms do not tally with his assertion, and no real authority accords any sanction to the claim.

The Baronetcy itself, however, was in its past a thoroughly genuine one, having lasted from 1685 up till the death of Adm. Sir Robert Laurie, the 6th in its line, in 1848. It includes, moreover, an episode which will probably interest many, and for an account of which we are indebted to the courtesy of the Rev. Sir Emilius Laurie above. We had enquired of him whether "Annie Laurie," so renowned in song, was a veritable historical personage; and the answer came that the said lady was the actual daughter of the 1st Baronet, and born in 1682. The words of the song were composed by a youth named Douglas of England, and the music more than a century afterwards by Lady Jno. Spottiswood; but, alas! the "promise true" proved a delusion, as too often the case with young ladies distinguished by special beauty of person (swans' necks and such-like little playfulnesses of nature); so she threw poor Douglas over, and married in his place Alexander Fergusson of Craigdarroch. The portraits of both herself and her husband, it is added, are in the keeping of the Baronet who still holds possession where "Maxwelton braes are bonnie."

Creations. Eng.: A Bt. 1620; Visc. Latimer and Bn. Osborne, 1673; E. of Danby, 1674; M. of Carmarthen, 1689; D. of Leeds, 1694. U.K.: Bn. Godolphin, 1832. Scot.: Visc. Oseburne, of Dunblane, 1674 (N.S.); Visc Dunblane, 1675 ("Dumblane" on Scot. Roll, and apparently this form or "Dumblaine" was the orig.).—Sir Thomas Osborne, 2nd Bt., was successively awarded the whole of the Peerage titles given under "England," and that of Visc. Osebjurne in Scotland. His son, the 2nd Duke, long before accession, obtained the other Scottish Viscty., the Godolphin Barony being granted to the 2nd son of the 5th Duke, whose son eventually succeeded as the 8th.

A question has been raised of late as to the origin of the title Leeds, and it has even been distinctly assigned to County Kent. It is true that there is a Leeds Castle near Maidstone and that at an early period the Osborne family was located at Ashford, some 14 miles distant, in the same county. But at the time of the creation of the Peerages it is abundantly clear that the Northern county had become their place of abode. The 1st Bt., who already in 1620 was a Knight of Kiveton, near Sheffield, was Vice-President of the "Council of the North" and Lieut.-General of the Royalist Forces raised there; his successor was created Bn. Osborne of Kiveton and Earl of Danby, both in Yorks.; he was successively High Sheriff and Lord Lieutenant of the entire county and Governor of Hull, and owned ground-rents in the town of Leeds itself; and it was upon him that the Dukedom was first conferred. Then as to the Leeds Castle in Kent, it passed through the hands of very various owners, but not a scrap of evidence exists of the family in question having resided there for a day. It is now in the hands of the Wykeham-Martin family, a recent member of which produced an elaborate and costly history of it, in which work a son of his has informed us the name of Osborne does not occur: in fact, the only feeble attempt we have met with at tracing a connection consists in the allegation that the ducal family is descended from a granddaughter of Sir Warham St. Leger, who had once been owner of the castle. We believe the notion to have been first started by a former Duchess who had previously been a domestic servant in the family; and it afterwards found promulgation in the wild gossip often contributed to M.A.P. The estimable Leeds historian Thoresby recounts an interview with the 1st Duke in which the latter stated expressly that he had chosen the title on account of Leeds being "the most considerable place for trade in the county;" and Sir H. Nicolas says distinctly, "Leeds, Co. York." Thus, as the present Duke has no means of deciding the matter, the Kentish theory may, in the words of a leading authority whom we have consulted, be safely dismissed as one of those "cock-and-bull ideas hardly worth seriously confuting."

CREATION. E. of Leicester and Visc. Coke, U.K. 1837.—This Earldom, which first appears in Sir H. Nicolas's pages with the remote date of 1103, has undergone a long succession of extinctions and forfeitures till it has become distinctly a modern line. The most notable among former holders of the title, excepting only Sir Simon de Montfort, was the discarded favourite of Queen Elizabeth, a son of the Duke of Northumberland. He (Sir Robert Dudley, K.G.) was the only representative of that creation, and later extinct lines were started in 1618, 1744, and 1784 (for the last of these see under "Townshend, Marq."). An illustrious ancestor of the present Peer is Sir Edward Coke, knighted by James I. and appointed Chief Justice of the King's Bench. A descendant, Thos. Wm. Coke, for many years M.P. for Norfolk, was the recipient of the present titles. The creation of 1744 was also to a Coke. It has been noticed that from the birth of the 1st Earl in the present line to the death of his late son there occurred the long interval of 157 years (1752—1909), the 2nd Peer having been born when his father was over 70, and himself having reached the age of 86. The 2nd Earl was twice married and had eighteen children, the eldest of whom was 49 years older than the youngest, who now has a niece 27 years older than himself. The 1st Earl headed a deputation to George III. in favour of recognising the independence of the American Colonies, and at a later date he delivered a violent attack upon that Monarch's memory, thus deferring for a time his own elevation to the Peerage. When at length this elevation did occur he took the title "Leicester of Holkham," on account of the 2nd Marq. Townshend having been constituted Earl of Leicester, and that title being borne by his supposed heir, who sat as such in the Commons whilst the new Earl sat in the Lords. But an Act of Parliament pronounced that son to be no son, and the Townshend Earldom of Leicester became extinct in 1855. Still, from 1837 up till this last year the two Earldoms of Leicester actually existed side by side.

LEINSTER (pron. Linster), DUKE OF. MAURICE FitzGerald, 6th Duke (Irel., PREMIER DUKE, MARQ., and EARL), sits as Visc. Leinster (Gt. Br.), was a Page at Coronation of King Edward: son of 5th D.; b. March 1, 1887; suc. 1893; unmarrd. Seat, Carton, Maynooth, Co. Kildare.

CREATIONS. Irel.: E. of Kildare, 1316; M. of Kildare and E. of Offaly, 1761; D. of Leinster, 1766. Gt. Br.: Visc. Leinster, 1747. U.K.: Bn. Kildare, 1870.—Gerald Fitzmaurice FitzGerald, the 1st Bn. (tenure), was son of Maurice FitzGerald, "patriarch of the Irish Geraldines," and a distinguished warrior, who, with the aid of Strongbow and a mere 600 English troops, defeated 30,000 Irish, who, under Roderick, King of Ireland, had invested Dublin, the latter monarch having previously driven the King of Leinster from his territory, whilst the purpose of Maurice and Strongbow was to reinstate him. The 2nd Bn. Offaly (tenure again) introduced the Franciscans and Dominicans into Ireland; the 6th was created Earl of Kildare, and it was in his time that the family coat of arms, containing three monkeys, was adopted, in consequence, it is said, of this Earl, when an infant, having been rescued from a fire by a tame ape, which tenderly bore him aloft into one of the towers. Several Earls of Kildare have figured in English history. The 7th was Lord Deputy of Ireland and afterwards Lord Chancellor. The 8th, called "Geroit Mor" (i.e. Gerald the Great), was for 33 years Lord Deputy and Lord Justice, and was also a warrior famed for his strength. He was deceived into supporting Lambert Simnel in his claims to the throne, and engaged in the conflict with Henry VII.'s troops, but he afterwards made his peace with the King, and in the following year gave valiant aid against Perkin Warbeck. The 9th Earl incurred the hatred of Wolsey and was committed to the Tower, where he died from horror at the sentence of excommunication pronounced against him for the murder of Archbp. Alen, committed by his followers. The 10th Earl his son, in consequence threw off his English allegiance and revolted, but surrendered under promise of pardon, which Henry VIII. violated and had him hanged, drawn, and quartered. The 11th Earl, then but a boy of twelve, had to flee the country, and was housed and brought up at Rome by Cardinal Pole. Edward VI. restored him his estates, and Mary his honours. The 20th Earl was constituted Marquess and Duke, and awarded also the British Viscounty. The Kildare Barony was created for the heir of the 3rd Duke during the lifetime of his father.

Creations. Scot.: Bn. Melville, orig. 1616, extended remainder under which the title continued 1627; E. of Leven and Bn. Balgonie, 1641; E. of Melville, Visc. Kirkaldie, and Bn. Raith, Monymail, and Balwearie, 1690.—Sir Robt. Melville (Kt.), a P.C. of Scotland and Ambassador to England, the 1st Bn., was distinguished by his dauntless endeavour to prevent the shameful execution of Mary Queen of Scots, which boldness of his caused Elizabeth to threaten his life; but after that arbitrary woman had passed away, King James elevated him to the Peerage as Bn. Melville, also appointing him Vice-Chancellor and an Extra Lord of Session (as Ld. Murdocarnie). The 4th Bn. obtained from William III. the Earldom of Melville with its accompanying Viscounty and Baronies, though previously he had been involved in the rebellion of Monmouth, and been in consequence attainted. The Earldom of Leven had a separate commencement, having been conferred upon Gen. Sir Alex. Lesley, a distinguished commander, who, having first served under Gustavus Adolphus, afterwards led a Scottish Army of the Covenanters in an invasion of England against Charles I., and had an important share in the victory of Marston Moor, but who, upon the treaty with that monarch, so won his favour that he raised him to this Peerage, and obtained his continued services upon the Royalist side. His granddaughter married the 1st Earl of Melville, and thus, on the failure of the direct Leven line, the two Earldoms came to be united. The late 13th Earl was a K.G. and a Scottish Representative Peer; also Lord High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland from 1898 to 1905. There have been two Countesses in the Leven line, and the present Peer will be reckoned the 14th or 12th according as these are or are not included in the numbering. Our practice in this work is to count the entire line, male and female alike; but some authorities allow themselves to vary from one plan to the other, doubtless to suit the preference of individual Peers. The late Earl advised us to call him the 13th.

Comdt. 1st Regt. of Italian Legion in Crimean War, is a Trustee of Nat. Portr. Gall.: maternal grandson of 1st Bt. (Sir Coutts Trotter) and a descendant of 7th E. of Balcarres; b. 1824, suc. 1837 (by special remainder), mar. 1864 Caroline Blanche Elizabeth, dau. of the late Rt. Hon. Hy. Fitzroy, son of 2nd Bn. Southampton. No heir. Club, Travellers'. Res., Lady L., 41 Hans Pl., S.W.

LINDSAY, Earl of (title to be carefully distinguished from "Lindsey" below). David Clark Bethune (pron. Beeton), 11th Earl (Scot.): 2nd cousin once removed of 10th E. and son of David Aytone Lindsay, Esq. (a descendant of the 4th Ld., not Earl—see below); b. April 18, 1832; suc. 1894; mar. 1856 Emily Marian, dau. of the late Robt. Crosse, Esq., and widow of Capt. Edmd. C. Barnes. Seats, Kilconquhar Castle, Fifesh.; Wormistone House, Crail, same Co.

Creations. Scot.: Ld. Lindsay of the Byres, 1445; E. of Lindsay and Ld. Parbroath, 1633; Visc. of Garnock and Ld. Kilbirnie, Kingsburn, and Drumry, 1703.—Sir Jno. Lindsay (Kt.), Justiciary of the Northern part of Scotland, was created Ld. Lindsay of the Byres, the 10th Ld. received the Earldom, and the son of his 2nd son was separately created Visc. of Garnock, the latter's grandson eventually succeeding as 5th Earl of Lindsay. Meantime a complication had set in to this higher title, causing it for some 165 years to be associated with the Earldom of Crawford. The succession to both Earldoms was open to "heirs male general" (Introd.), but upon the 16th Earl of Crawford having no issue, he in 1642 obtained a new charter diverting the descent to the "direct heirs" of his friend and remote kinsman, the 1st Earl of Lindsay, with reversion, upon the failure of such heirs, to the previous line of remainder, i.e., his own collaterals. Thus this 1st Earl of Lindsay took the title of Earl of Crawford-Lindsay, and his five next successors continued to hold both titles; but in 1808 the "direct heirs" of the Lindsay line failed, and then, in virtue of the above charter and the regular law for "heirs general," the lines divided, and each went to its own collaterals—the Lindsay Earldom to the 16th Lord Lindsay of the Byres, and that of Crawford to the 6th Earl of Balcarres. It must be observed that the above Earls all along had held this Lordship of the Byres, but that in 1808 a reversion had to be made to a descendant of the 4th Ld., followed in 1878, as decided by the House of Lords, by another reversion, but only to the descendant of another son of the same Lord. The 4th Earl of Lindsay, 20th of Crawford, distinguished himself in the wars with the Turks and French, commanding in 1750 the Black Watch, then styled "the gallant 42nd" and "Lord Crawford-Lindsay's Highlanders."—The name of Bethune was first assumed in 1779 by the grandfather of the 9th Earl de jure, who, however, never adopted the title, and was known as Sir Henry Lindsay-Bethune; he was created a Baronet in 1836 for his military achievements in Persia, but this honour expired with his son the late Earl.

LOTHIAN, MARQUESS OF. ROBERT SCHOMBER Kerr (pron. Karr), 10th Marq. (Scot.), sits a Bn. Ker (of Kersheugh—U.K.), a D.L. for Roxburgh: son of 9th M.; b. March 22, 1874; suc 1900 (C.); unmrrd. Seats, Newbattle Abbey Dalkeith, Midlothian; Monteviot, Ancrum, Roxb Blickling Hall, Aylsham, Norfolk.

CREATIONS. Scot.: Ld. Newbottle, 1591; E. of Lothian, 1631 (orig. 1606); Ld. Jedburgh, 1622; E. of Ancram and Ld. Kerr of Nisbet, Langnewtoune, and Dolphingtoune, 1633; M. of Lothian, E. of Ancram (renewed, and perhaps spelt "Ancrum" this time), Visc. of Briene, and Ld. Kerr of Newbottle, Oxnam, Jedburgh, Dolphingtoun, and Nisbet, 1701. U.K: Bn. Ker (of Kersheugh), 1821.—Mark Kerr, an Extraordinary Lord of Session and Master of Requests, obtained the title of Lord Newbottle and later on of Earl of Lothian. A cousin of his was created Ld. Jedburgh, and another cousin Earl of Ancram, but the titles all converged. The 4th Earl was raised to the Marquessate, and the 6th Marq. made a U.K. Baron. The 1701 creation seems to have adopted the form "Ancrum," which is the name of one of the family estates; but "Ancram" is the orthography used in the title of the heir when a firstborn son (compare the above forms "Ld. Newbottle" and "Newbattle Abbey").

LOUDOUN, EARL OF. CHARLES EDWARD HASTINGS Abney-Hastings, 11th Earl (Scot.), sits as Bn. Botreaux (Eng.); a D.L. for Ayrshire, late Lieut. Leic. Yeom.: son of Chas. F. Abney-Hastings, Esq. (né Cliiton, created Bn. Donington after death of his wife), and of the late Ctss. of Loudoun, sist. of 4th and last M. of Hastings, on the extinction of whose Marquessate the Earldom and other Scottish titles passed to this lady, the English Baronies falling into abeyance, till terminated in her favour in 1871; b. Jan. 5, 1855; suc. to Earldom &c. (C.) on death of his mother 1874, to Donington Barony on that of his father 1895; mar. 1880 Hon. Alice Mary Elizabeth Fitzalan-Howard, dau. of 1st Bn. Howard of Glossop. Seats, Willesley Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leic.; Loudoun Castle, Galston, Ayrshire.

CREATIONS. Scot.: Ld. Campbell of Loudoun 1601; E. of Loudoun and Ld. Tarrinzean and Mauchline, 1633. Eng. (all by writ): Ld. Botreaux, 1368; Ld. Hungerford, 1426; Ld. de Molines, 1445; Ld. Hastings de Hastings, 1461; Bn. Hastings de Hungerford, 1482, U.K.: Bn. Donington, 1880. "Ld. Mauchline" is the courtesy-title of an eld. son. Sir Hugh Campbell, Sheriff of Ayr, a descendant of the ancestor of the Dukes of Argyll, was created Ld. Campbell of Loudoun. His granddaughter, Bnss. in her own right, married Sir Jno. Campbell, son of Sir Colin Campbell of Glenorchy, and her husband was awarded the Loudoun Earldom with its accompanying Baronies. Of the English titles it is sufficient here to explain that those of Botreaux, De Molines, and Hungerford had become united in Mary, heiress of the 4th Ld. Hungerford, who married the heir to the Hastings Barony, which afterwards became a Marquessate, this last becoming extinct on the lapse of male heirs, whilst the Baronies went into abeyance, from which they were liberated in 1871. They had come into the Loudoun line through the marriage of Sir Jno. Rawdon, 1st Earl of Moira, with Lady Eliz. Hastings, who succeeded to them on the death of her brother the 10th Earl of Huntingdon. For the U.K. Barony of Donington see the text. See also Bnss. Grey de Ruthyn and Hastings Marquessate.

CREATION. Bn. of Louth, Irel. 1541.—Sir Oliver Plunkett (Kt.) was created 1st Bn. The 6th in his line was outlawed by the Parliament in 1642 for the support he gave to the Stuarts, and as his son and successor continued that support into the reign of James II., the force of the unrevoked outlawry was revived to exclude from Parliament the next (8th) holder of the title, and this was not reversed until 1798 during the tenure of the 11th Baron.

Inverness; town res., 38 Grosvenor Gdns., Eaton Sq., S.W.

CREATIONS. Ld. Lovat, Scot. between 1459 and 1464, U.K. 1837.—Hugh Fraser, one of the hostages for James I. of Scotland's ransom when set at liberty in England (1424), was given by that monarch the Barony of Kinnell, which is considered by some, though hardly by Burke, to have constituted him 1st Ld. His grandson of the same name, who married a daughter of Ld. Glamis, was created Ld. Lovat, or Ld. Fraser of Lovat. An unhappy episode in the family history was enacted by the 11th Ld. and the eldest daughter of the 9th. They eloped together, but the woman, who on her father's death had styled herself Baroness, returned to her mother and married Alex. Mackenzie. The Court of Session eventually deprived her of her title and gave it in 1730 to her former lover. He however had in the interim of over 30 years distinguished himself by a further course of violence. He was in 1698 attainted and sentenced to death for seizing the estates of his intended spouse; the sentence not being carried out, he forcibly possessed himself of her own mother and compelled her to marry him, and for this he was outlawed in 1701. His crimes being gradually condoned by time, he was, as just stated, at length awarded the Peerage; but, taking part in the rebellion of 1745, he was impeached and executed on Tower Hill. After the death of his youngest son (who did not bear the title) the succession passed to a descendant of the 4th, upon whom the U.K. Barony was conferred.

LOVAT, BARON'S WIDOW. DOWAGER LADY L. (Alice Mary, dau. of Thos. W. Blundell, Esq.), mar. 1866 13th Bn. Lovat (d. 1887).

LOVAT, MASTER OF, title of the heir to the preceding Barony when a son.

LOVELAND AND HOLLAND, BARON (Gt. Br. 1762), Imper. title of E. of Egmont.

LOVELACE, EARL OF. LIONEL FORTESCUE King, 3rd Earl (U.K.), a D.L. for Surrey, formerly Capt. 9th Lancers: son (by 2nd wife) of 1st E. and half-bro. of 2nd; b. Nov. 16, 1865; suc. to Earldom and to King Bny. 1906 (C.), the Wentworth Bny. passing to late Earl's dau.; mar. 1895 Lady Edith Anson, dau. of 2nd E. of Lichfield; resumed 1906 the surname of King in place of King-Noel, and had it confirmed by licence 1908. Seats, Horsley Towers, Leatherhead, Surrey; Ben Damph Forest, Torridon, Achnasheen, Ross-sh.; town house, 23 Knightsbridge, S.W.

CREATIONS. Ld. King, Bn. of Ockham, Gt. Br. 1725; E. of Lovelace and Visc. Ockham, U.K. 1838.—Sir Thos. Wentworth (Kt.) was granted the title of Bn. Wentworth, which has now become a distinct Peerage; whilst Sir Peter King, Kt. and M.P., maternal nephew of Jno. Locke the philosopher, and who became Lord Chief Justice of Common Pleas and ultimately Lord Chancellor, was the 1st Ld. King, Bn. of Ockham. The 8th of the latter series was made Earl and Viscount. The 2nd Bn. W., the last English Governor of Calais, was made a P.C. and a Kt. Banneret. The 4th Bn. was created Earl of Cleveland, but that title went no farther. Two granddaughters followed as holders of this Barony, and in their line of successors we find the further extinct titles of Visc. Wentworth and Bn. Lovelace. The Wentworth Barony itself in 1815 fell into abeyance between the deceased Baron's sister Judith (who by marriage had become Lady Milbanke) and his nephew, Lord Scarsdale; but this condition was terminated in 1856 by Anne Isabella, daughter of the former and then widow of Lord Byron (whose surname was Noel-Byron), being left sole heir. Her only child, the Hon. Augusta Ada Noel-Byron, married the above nobleman, who was created 1st Earl of Lovelace. The late Earl had thus the high distinction of being a grandson of the poet Byron; but as this was upon the maternal side it confers no such relationship upon his half-brother, the present Peer. Lord B.'s widow, the above well-known Anne Isabella, Lady Byron, on the death of Bn. Scarsdale in 1856, became in her own right Bnss. Wentworth, until her decease in 1860, when she was succeeded for two years by her grandson. Her daughter the Hon. Augusta Ada, the endeared "Ada" of the poet predeceased her mother in 1852, leaving two sons and a daughter, so that the Wentworth Barony passed to the elder of these sons; she had married William, 8th Bn. King who became 1st Earl of Lovelace. The elder of the two sons, 12th Bn. Wentworth by descent from his mother, died before his father; hence the younger now became 12th Bn. W., 9th Bn. King, and eventually 2nd Earl. The 1st Earl added the name Noel to King; the 2nd in 1861 exchanged the two names for Milbanke, but King only is now restored.

CREATIONS. Bn. Macdonald, Irel. 1776; a Bt. Scot. 1625.—The Celtic ancestors of this line for some generations bore the title "Lord of the Isles," the last Lord being also Earl of Ross; but this nobleman was attainted for treason and both his titles were annexed to the Scottish Crown, the Lordship thus coming in 1469 to be a title of the heir to the throne, and since the Union to be one of the Scottish titles of the Prince of Wales (the present Bn. is descended from a half-brother of this last Lord of the Isles). A Baronetcy commenced a century and a half later, and was located at Sleat in the island of Skye; the Peerage adopted the similarly pronounced word Slate, passing it off as a genuinely existing place in Co. Antrim: see page 6 for similar instances, but note that the Earls of Antrim were originally a MacDonald line. Sir Alex. Macdonald, 9th Bt., was raised to the Irish Barony, and until 1910 his five successors continued to hold both titles. In that year Sir Alexander W. M.-Bosville Macdonald of Thorpe Hall (see below) established the legitimacy, under Scottish law, of his grandfather, eldest son of the 3rd Bn. Macdonald, and therewith his right to the baronetcy. The Irish Peerage, however, was unaffected by the legitimisation in Scotland of a child born before marriage.

MACDONALD OF THE ISLES, LADY. This title is sometimes applied to the wife of Bn. Macdonald, and we for a time gave it mention under the belief that it implied no more than a useful conventional distinction of that lady from the seven other Ladies Macdonald whom the preceding pages contain. It appears, however, that the designation is a matter of keen controversy between the different branches of the Clan Donald, the question being as to which of these has the better right as judged by seniority of descent from the Celtic Lords of the Isles, and the opinion of Garter King of Arms has been obtained to the effect that no person has a right to adopt the title until the matter has been formally settled.

MACKENZIE, BARONET of Scatwell (and presumably of Tarbat, but this not assumed). Sir (JAMES) KENNETH DOUGLAS Mackenzie, 10th Bt. of Tarbat (?) (Scot. 1628) and 8th of Scatwell (1703), A.M.I.C.E.: son of 7th Bt. of S., b. 1859, suc. 1900, mar. 1888 Stephanie Corinne, dau. of the late Jules Espinet, Esq., M.D., of Trinidad. Heir, his son LEWIS RODERICK KENNETH (b. 1902; 2nd heir, a 3rd cousin, Edmund Lyons M., b. 1858).

The 8th Bt. of Tarbat de jure never assumed the title of a Baronet. At his death in 1882 the Baronetcy passed by special remainder to the 6th Bt. of Scatwell (8th of T.), but he too declined to adopt it. Upon his death in 1884 the two titles thus came jointly to the late Bt. The present Bt. writes us that he shall not assume this portion of his title till it is authoritatively decided—more especially as his so doing would make him representative of an Earldom of Cromartie (1703) which fell under attainder in 1746.

Creations. Eng.: Visc. Mandeville and Bn. Montagu of Kimbolton, 1620; E. of Manchester, 1626. Gt. Br.: D. of Manchester, 1719.—Several Baronies of Montagu had been created from the time of Henry II. onwards, and there is understood to be a family connection between the first of these and the present Peerage. The existing Viscounty and Earldom were conferred upon Sir Henry Montagu, M.P. for the City of London and Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench; he was afterwards made Lord Privy Seal. The 2nd Earl was a brilliant General on the Parliamentary side and took a leading part in the victory of Marston Moor, having Cromwell for his Lieut.-General. The execution of the King, however, caused him to abandon that side, and he was subsequently deputed by the Lords to congratulate Charles II. on his restoration. The 4th Earl, who had been Ambassador at Venice, Paris, and Vienna, and had been conspicuous in espousing the cause of William of Orange against James II., was raised to the Dukedom. The 5th Duke was Governor of Jamaica.

 The state of uncertainty in which for three years this Baronetcy was involved was cleared up in November 1906 by a decision of the Court of Session that the parents of the above Sir Edwd. Berkeley M. were validly married in Scotland in 1838 and that he was their eldest lawful son. The facts were as follows: In 1838 his parents entered into an irregular marriage in Scottish form, and after a cohabitation extending over several years they were in 1847 married with religious rites. Sir Edward was the eldest son under the former stage, but the charge of illegitimacy was advanced against him, and a son born under the later condition assumed the title upon the death of the 9th Bt. in 1883, being himself succeeded unquestioned by the above Courtenay Cecil Mansel, now nearest heir, but from 1892 to 1903 styled 11th Bt. But both the 10th and 11th successors now appear to have had no right to the title, and the latter at once abandoned it on being made aware of the claim of his uncle. This the Court of Session has now definitely confirmed, pointing out that Scottish law recognises as lawful an irregular marriage with subsequent co-habitation.

CREATIONS. Gt. B.: E. of Mansfield of Co. Notts. 1776, and of Co. Middx. 1792. Scot.: Ld. Scone, 1605; Visc. of Stormont, 1621; Ld. Balvaird, 1641.—Sir David Murray, cup-bearer to James VI., whose life he had helped to save from the Gowrie plot, accompanied that monarch to England, and was created Ld. Scone and afterwards Visc. of Stormont. That title of Ld. Balvaird was given to a collateral, the Rev. Sir Andrew Murray, whose son, the 2nd Ld., succeeded as 4th Visc. Stormont. The title of Baron of Mansfield (extinct) was conferred upon a younger son of the 5th Visc., the Hon. Wm. Murray, a friend of the poet Pope, who concurrently was appointed Ld. Chief Justice of England. He (the Bn.) obtained subsequently two patents of Earldom, of which the former assigned the remainder to the wife of his nephew, 7th Visc. Stormont, owing to a mistaken belief that no English Peerage could pass to a Scottish Peer. When the contrary was ascertained the second patent was granted with remainder to the Viscount himself. Thus, through the death of the grantee without issue, the Earldoms passed to the line of the Viscts., but the Bny. lapsed altogether; whilst two distinct Earldoms of Mansfield passed to the above husband and wife; but on the death of the latter they were reunited, the 4th Earl upon the male side being her grandson and nearest heir (he succeeded her in 1843, his father in 1840). On the Imperial Roll of Peers the title stands "Earl of Mansfield," not "Mansfield and Mansfield," though the 4th Earl referred to himself by that double title.

March 29, 1836; suc. 1866, with confirmation by Act 1885 (C.); assumed name of Erskine 1866; mar. same year Alice Mary Sinclair, dau. of the late Jno. Hamilton, Esq., of Hilston Pk., Monmouthsh. Res., Villa Indiana, Monte Carlo; town res., 17 Dover St., W.

CREATIONS. Scot.: E. of Mar (orig. Marr), bef. 1114, but given precedence of 1405 (N.S.) as earliest date for which documentary evidence was produced at the "Decret of Ranking" in 1606; Ld. Erskine, 1429, and Ld. Alloa (?) 1489 (as to which see under follg. line).—We are indebted for the earlier part of the following particulars to the Hon. Ruaidhri Erskine's investigations into the early history of this ancient and obscure Peerage, which he has most courteously and at considerable pains contributed for our benefit. The origin of the house of Mar has been traced back to Core, son of Lughaidh, King of Munster in the era of St. Patrick. Corc, who was banished to Scotland at the instigation of his stepmother, is said to have married Mongfhionn, daughter of the King of the Picts, and from this marriage the Mar line is regarded as having sprung. The descendants of Corc bore the title of Mòrmhaoir Mhàrr or Great Stewards of Marr (the form "Mharr" being the genitive of "Marr," and "Mòrmhaor," in plural "Mòrmhàoir," a variant or earlier form of the title usually given as "Mormaer"). Of these descendants, probably the first whose identity is clear was Domhnull (Donald), who was slain at Clontarf in 1014. But the first to be styled Earl or Comes was Ruaidhri (Latinised "Rotheri," but pronounced and often written "Ruari"), whose name appears as "Comes" in the charter founding the Abbey of Scone in 1114-15, and in the "Book of Deer" in 1132, though in the latter styled Mòrmhaor: in fact this latter title was very probably still used conventionally until the extinction of the Celtic dynasty in the person of the "Maid of Norway" at the close of the 13th century. William, the 6th Earl, was co-Regent of Scotland in 1258, and the contests of this powerful nobleman with Durnard, who declared him illegitimate, add a fresh element of obscurity to the history of this line. William, however, "remained in possession." Donald, the 9th Earl, was Regent of Scotland in 1332. Margaret, Countess 11th in line, married Donald, 1st Earl of Douglas, father of the Earl who fell at "Chevy Chase." The names thus far accepted by Mr. Erskine as either certain or probable Earls (though the element of rivalry casts some doubt in one or two instances) may be thus stated: 1, Ruaidhri; 2, Gillocher; 3, Morgund; 4, Malcolm; 5, Duncan; 6, William; 7, Donald; 8, Gartnait; 9, Donald (2); 10, Thomas; 11, William (2); 12, James; 13, Alexander—he and No. 11 taking the title jure uxoris. The 14th, Sir Robt. Erskine, was a collateral relative who had been created Ld. Erskine, but who was not recognised as Earl by the Crown. His successor was granted the Alloa Lordship, but formally dispossessed of the Earldom, and that title was now merged in the Crown until in 1565 this dispossession was pronounced unjust and the 19th Earl and 6th Lord Erskine was fully recognised as lawful holder of the higher of these dignities. The Garioch Lordship was a feudal honour stated to have been conferred upon Lady Christian Bruce, sister of King Robert I. and wife of the 8th Earl, but uncertain. The above 19th Earl was also the 1st in what is now declared to be the line of Mar and Kellie, which continued for several generations to be associated with the original line without apparently any allegation of their distinctness being made: the Erskine and Alloa Lordships had accompanied the leading title, and these are now claimed as belonging to each line. The ground of exclusion of the above Sir Robt. Erskine was the illegitimacy of the husband of the Countess who had preceded him; but as his own descent was not from these but from the 8th Earl there was obviously reason enough for a reversal of the decree, though under it the title had been bestowed upon sons of the 2nd and 3rd Jameses, and the legitimate successors from the 14th to the 18th were Earls de jure alone. The 20th Earl was Lord Treasurer of Scotland, the 22nd was Chancellor, and the 24th Secretary of State, but he suffered attainder for sharing in the insurrection of 1715. The 27th was in 1824 restored to all the titles (the 25th and 26th being counted in the numbering though legally deprived); and it was on the death of the 29th that the separation of the titles occurred as below.

The two Earldoms, "Mar" and "Mar and Kellie," have much intricacy in their history, as will in part be evident from the summary above. In the 15th century the line of Mar became involved in the proceedings detailed above, but in 1565 after an investigation the title was awarded to its then claimant, but the conditions were stated to be so altered that the House of Lords, on reviewing it in 1875, pronounced them to have amounted to a new creation. The succession, however, had for centuries continued as before, and in 1834 the Earldom of Kellie was united with this original Mar Earldom; but on the death of the holder of the joint titles (29th Earl of Mar) without issue in 1866 they again became separated, the title of Kellie going to the next male heir, whilst the original Earldom followed female succession to the present Earl of Mar. Finally, on the conclusion of the above-mentioned investigation by the House of Lords, it was decided that the Mar Earldom declared to have commenced in 1565 must also pass to the inheritor on the male side, whilst the 1404 Earldom remained as the distinct Peerage of Mar, a special Act being passed in 1885 to place unchallenged the continuity of that ancient Peerage. The course of changes may be thus summed up: Up to 1834 what are now pronounced to have been two Mar Earldoms had from 1565 been held by one and the same Peer; from 1834 to 1866 they remained united and with the further association of the Kellie title; from 1866 to 1875 this last title parted off and left the two as before; and since 1875 the Kellie line has been possessed of the 2nd creation of Mar.

MAR AND KELLIE, EARL OF. WALTER JOHN FRANCIS Erskine, 12th E. of Mar and 14th of Kellie (Scot.), holder of PREM. VISCTY. of Scotld., a Scottish Repres. Peer (el. 1892), V.D., Lord Lieut. of Clackmannansh. and Pres. of its Territ. Force Assoc., Hon. Col. 7th Batt. Argyll and Suthd. Highldrs. (Terr.), Brigadier of Roy. Co. of Archers, formerly Lieut. Scots Gds.: son of 11th E.; b. Aug. 29, 1865; suc. 1828 (C.); mar. 1892 Lady Susan Violet Ashley, dau. of 8th E. of Shaftesbury. Seats, Alloa House, Clackmannansh.; Kellie Castle, Fife.

CREATIONS. Scot.: Ld. Erskine, 1429, and Ld. Alloa (?), 1489; E. of Mar (2nd creation, see under that title), 1565; Ld. Dirleton, 1603; Visc. Fentoun, 1606; E. of Kellie, 1619.—Sir Robt. Erskine (kt., see preceding article), who had been recognized by Robert III. as entitled to the Earldom of Mar, was granted the Erskine Lordship, but it was not till some 108 years later that his line was established in the higher title. His successor appears to have had the Alloa Lordship added. The 4th Lord Erskine fell at Flodden. The 6th Lord Erskine had the Earldom of Mar confirmed to him by charter, and this document, as explained above, was the origin of the division of the titles, it being deduced therefrom that this Peer was constituted recipient of the 1st Earldom of the new creation whilst he continued to rank as 19th under the old. The Dirleton Barony and Fentoun Viscty. were about the same date conferred upon Sir Thos. Erskine, K.G., a grandson of the 5th Lord E., in recognition of his having shared with Sir David Murray (see "Mansfield") in rescuing King James from the Gowrie conspiracy; and to him also, rather later, the Kellie Earldom was accorded. On the death of the 10th Earl of this latter line the 27th (9th) Earl of Mar became his successor. The decision of the House of Lords in 1875 is thus given: "Resolved, that Walter Henry, Earl of Kellie, Visc. Fentoun, and Bn. Erskine and Dirleton, hath made out his claim to the Earldom of Mar created in 1565." For further particulars see previous article.

Vanderbilt, Esq., of New York. Seat, Blenheim Palace, Woodstock, Oxon; town res., Sunderland House, 38B Curzon St., W.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Bn. Spencer (of Wormleighton), 1603; E. of Sunderland, 1643: Bn. Churchill (of Sandridge), 1685; E. of Marlborough, 1689; D. of Marlborough and M. of Blandford, 1702.—Sir Robt. Spencer (Kt.) was created 1st Bn. of that title, and the 3rd Bn. was granted the Sunderland Earldom, but was slain at Newbury in the year of his promotion, fighting on the Royalist side. The other honours began in a distinct family. Jno. Churchill, a Page of Honour to James, Duke of York, afterwards King James II., was made an officer in the Guards and rendered signal services against the Moors and at the Siege of Maestricht. He in 1680 attended the Prince into Scotland, and was in 1682 made a Peer of that kingdom by the title Lord Churchill of Eyemouth (which title then went no further than himself). He next became a General officer, and on the accession of James to the throne he was appointed Ambassador to France and created Bn. Churchill of Sandridge (English Peerage) and afterwards Earl of Marlborough. At the Revolution he abandoned James and became a supporter of King William, but was suspected by him of treachery and committed to the Tower. Under Queen Anne he was appointed Captain-General of the Forces in England, and he then, with the cooperation of Prince Eugene of Savoy, head of the Army of Hungary, began his great military career signalised by the victories of Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenarde, and Malplaquet. Previous to the first of these, and in recognition of a series of achievements in the Netherlands, he was created Duke of Marlborough and Marq. of Blandford. Being accused of peculation he withdrew from England, the Duchess also being expelled from the Court. As he left no male heir, a special Act gave the succession to his daughter Henrietta, upon whose death the Dukedom and its accompanying honours passed to her nephew, Chas. Spencer, 5th Earl of Sunderland (his father, the 3rd Earl, having married the Duchess's younger sister), thus accomplishing the union of the two houses. The 3rd Duke, who had commanded a brigade of Foot Guards at Dettingen in 1743, was in 1758 appointed Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces intended to serve in Germany under Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick; but he (the Duke) died of a fever in that year. The 5th Duke added the name of Churchill to his own. The 7th Duke was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland 1876-80. The 1st Duke was created in 1704 a Prince of the Holy Rom. Emp., and subsequently Prince of Mindelheim in Suabia; but these titles, which cannot pass to the descendants of a daughter, became extinct with him. The famous French song, "Malbrouk s'en va-t-en guerre" is stated, though not without contradiction, to relate to a legend of the time of the Crusades, and thus to have no connection with the above warrior Duke, as the resemblance in name might readily lead one to suppose.

(1900-1), Maj. 17th Lancers retd., now Maj. North Irish Horse (Spec. Res.), served in S. Africa 1900-2; son of 11th V.; b. Nov. 28, 1873; suc. 1905 (C.); mar. same year Jean Barbara, dau. of Jno. S. Ainsworth, Esq., M.P. Seats, Antrim Castle, Co. Antrim; Oriel Temple, Collon, Drogheda.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Visc. Massereene and Bn. of Loughneagh, 1660; Bn. Oriel, 1790; Visc. Ferrard, 1797. U.K.: Bn. Oriel, 1821.—Sir Jno. Clotworthy (Kt.) was made 1st Visc. Massereene and was succeeded by his son-in-law Sir Jno. Skeffington, 4th Bt. The 5th Visc. was made Earl of Massereene, and that title was held successively by his three sons. The last of these left only a daughter, so that on his death the Earldom lapsed, but the titles of 1660 were open to heirs general (a very exceptional condition in the Irish Peerage) and thus admitted of a female succeeding; the daughter accordingly became Viscts. 9th in line, and her marriage, as stated below, brought about the union of the two lines. The Ferrard Viscty. and apparently the Irish Barony of Oriel were conferred (with remainder to male issue) upon Margaret Amelia Burgh, who married the Rt. Hon. Jno. Foster, last Speaker of the Irish Parliament for a time, to whom eventually was awarded the U.K. Barony. Their son was the 2nd Visc. Ferrard, the Peer who married the above-mentioned 9th Viscts. Massereene, and the issue of these succeeded his mother as 10th Visc. Massereene and his father as 3rd Visc. Ferrard. This Peer is summoned in the latter title only to elections of Irish Representative Peers, the claim of the Massereene Viscty. having never had occasion to be put forward. The line is now that of Ferrard on the male side, but the 2nd Visc. assumed the Massereene surname of Skeffington, which is now practically the only one in use. It will be observed that the diverse terms of remainder have temporarily involved a difference in the heirdom to the two Viscties.

MELDRUM, Baron (U.K. 1815), Imper. title of M. of Huntly.

MELFORT Earldom. This title is dormant, but may possibly accrue to Lady (Marie Louise Susan) Edith Grace Drummond, 7th in line of Earldom (Scot.), but adopting style of "Lady Edith Drummond" only; she is however Comtesse de Lussan and Baronne de Valrose (France): dau. of 14th E. of Perth and 6th of Melfort; b. April 29, 1854; suc. (?) 1902 on death of her father, when the two Earldoms are considered to have divided; unmrrd. Res., The Cottage, Kew.

Creations. Scot.: Visc. Melfort and Ld. Drummond of Gilstoun, 1685; E. of Melfort, Visc. Forth, and Ld. Drummond of Riccartoun, Castlemaine, and Galstoun, 1686, but stated to have been surrendered to the Crown in the following year and re-conferred, with succession open to females, in 1688. France: Comte de Lussan and Bn. de Valrose, by mrrge. 1707.—These titles were all conferred upon John, 2nd son of the 3rd Earl of Perth, but the supposed surrender has introduced a complication. The late Earl of Perth and Melfort left as his only surviving child the above daughter, Lady Edith Drummond, and if the fact of the surrender could be proved she would be the unquestioned Countess of Melfort, the Perth Earldom, which is distinctly heritable by males alone, having passed to Visc. Strathallan, who makes no claim to the other Peerage. Lady Edith has written to us to assert that if that surrender could be established she would at once lay claim to the title; but adding that no such substantiation has been found. Thus the original terms of remainder, "to the heirs male of the body of John, Earl of Melfort," are the only ones upon which any present action can be taken, and the claim of Lady Edith is in effect abandoned. James II. when in exile conferred upon the Earl the title of Duke of Melfort, and his son subsequently gave that of Duke of Perth to his brother the 4th Earl. Both these honours were of course worthless as to recognition in this country, but Louis XIV. in 1701 made genuine French Peerages of them both, and on the Continent we are informed that even James's creations were accepted. This Dukedom of Perth expired in 1760; and the Melfort Dukedom, which was limited to heirs male of the body of the 1st Duke, has now also lapsed.

Heir Presumptive.

1st, if female succession allowed:

Francis Maurice Drummond Drummond, Esq., barrister-at-law, a 1st cousin, son of late Earl's sister Lady Lucy Clementina Davies: b. 1839, assumed name of Drummond 1865, mar. 1883 Florence Amelia Louisa, dau. of Hon. Adolphus F. C. M. Capell (bro. of 6th E. of Essex) and widow of Fras. N. Reade, Esq. Res., 20 Marine Sq., Brighton. (Heiress and in order, Marie, Bnss. Durand de Fontmagne, descended in 5th generation from 1st E. of Melfort.)

2nd, if succession to be male:

The Earl of Perth, b. 1871 (on which hypothesis he is Earl of M. de jure now).

MEREDYTH, Baronetcy of Greenhills. This title (Irel. 1660) is now pronounced extinct, no proof being available of the marriage of a former ancestor of the claimant, who in consequence has promptly withdrawn. The 7th Bt. registered a pedigree in accordance with which the line subsisted until the death of the 10th Bt. in 1904; but the genuineness of that pedigree has since been gravely suspected, though Burke continues hesitatingly to insert "Sir Charles George Meredyth," but adding that the official authorities regard the line as having become extinct on the death of the 1st Bt. in 1665. The lady hitherto known as widow of the 10th Bt. will consequently also have her title extinguished.

 This Baronetcy is now regarded as dormant—in fact 'Burke,' who formerly so designated it, now omits it altogether, whilst 'Debrett' notes that the "proof" was made before the Lyon King of Arms instead of one of the like officials in England: hence there exists an irregularity, so that the title cannot be held to be technically valid.—Lady Mitchell protests against this note, but we can only state the facts as they appear to stand.

Aberruthven, Mugdock, and Fintrie, 1707. Gt. Br.: Earl Graham and Bn. G. of Belford, 1742.—The 1st Ld. Graham was Patrick Graham, one of the Lords of Regency during the minority of James II. of Scotland. The 3rd Lord was made Earl of Montrose for his gallantry at the Battle of Sauchieburn in which James III. was slain; but himself fell with James IV. at Flodden. The 5th Earl was created Marquess in recognition of his services as a Commander on behalf of Charles I. He led the Royalist forces and twice defeated the Army of the Covenant under the Earl of Argyll, but was afterwards overcome by General Lesly and was taken prisoner and executed. John Graham of Claverhouse, Visc. Dundee, so famous in song, was a collateral relative of this house who in 1689 led the Highland rebels at Killiecrankie in their effort at the restoration of James II.: he was victorious, but himself slain and his troops then dispersed. The 4th Marq. was raised to the Dukedom, together with the string of lesser honours accompanying. His son was separately created Earl and Bn. Graham of Gt. Britain, and though he never himself succeeded to the Dukedom, these titles passed by special remainder to the 2nd Duke.

Palmer. Seats, Darnaway Castle, Forres, Elginsh. ; Donibristle Pk., Crossgates, Fifesh. ; Castle Stuart, Inverness ; Doune Lodge, Doune, Perthsh. ; Kinfauns Castle, Perth ; Gray House, Dundee.

Creations. Scot. : E. of Moray and Lord Abernethy and Strathearn, 1562 ; Ld. Doune, 1581 ; E. of Moray (2nd cr.) and Ld. St. Colme, 1611. Gt. Br. : Bn. Stuart of Castle Stuart, 1796. "Lord Doune" is the courtesy-title of an eld. son.—There have been repeated Earldoms of Moray, some from Celtic times. The 1st Earl of the present series was a son of King James V., Jas. Stewart, Prior of St. Andrews. (His charter of 1562 above was supplemented by others of 1564 and 1568, the last including heirs female, but under Scottish law the precedence remains with the original grant.) He became Regent of Scotland, but was assassinated in 1570. His daughter married the 2nd Ld. Doune, and the husband became 2nd Earl in right of his wife. He too was assassinated, but the 1st Marq. of Huntly, who did the deed, had obtained a writ empowering him to "execute justice" on the accomplices in the Earl of Bothwell's raid on Holyrood House. The 1st Ld. Doune was Sir Jas. Stewart of Doune (whose sister married Robt. Crichton of Cluny and was mother of the "Admirable Crichton"); the 2nd, as we have seen, became 2nd Earl of Moray. The 3rd Earl in 1611 resigned his titles into the King's hands and obtained a new charter of them. The Lordship of St. Colme was granted to a brother of the 2nd Earl. The 9th Earl received the British Barony. The Barony of Gray was recently included in this line through the daughter of the 11th Bn. Gray marrying the 5th Earl of Moray, their grandson coming to succeed as 14th Earl and 18th Bn. Upon his death without issue the titles separated again.

Rid., formerly Lieut. E. Yorks. Mil.: son of 23rd Bn. M.; b. May 23, 1867; suc. 1893 (C.); mar. (same year) Mary, dau. of the late Thos. A. Constable, Esq. Seat, Allerton Park, Knaresborough, Yorks.

CREATIONS. Eng.: Ld. Mowbray, 1283 by writ; Ld. Segrave, 1295; Bn. and Ld. Stourton, of Stourton, Wilts. 1448 (the oldest Barony by letters patent now extant). Claim to a Norfolk Earldom of 1312 disallowed Nov., 1906. —The first nobles to hold the two oldest of these Baronies were Roger de Mowbray and Nicholas de Segrave, but the two lines became united by the marriage of the 4th Bn. Mowbray with the Bnss. 5th in the Segrave line (whose grandfather had in 1312 been created Earl of Norfolk, and whose mother was Countess and afterwards Life Duchess of the same), and their 2nd son, the 6th Ld. Mowbray and 7th Segrave, was made Earl of Nottingham and Duke of Norfolk. The Duke, as he now was, was charged by the Duke of Hereford (afterwards King Henry IV.) with imputing a murderous intent to King Richard II., and this charge he challenged Hereford to substantiate by single combat. The King forbade the duel and banished them both from the kingdom, when Norfolk died of the plague at Venice (Nicolas says "of grief"). His son, who succeeded, was refused the title of Duke, but retained the double Earldoms and Baronies. He was involved in the rebellion of Scrope, Archbp. of York, and arrested and beheaded without trial. There was thus no attainder, and his titles passed to his brother, to whom eventually the Dukedom was restored. They remained in this line till the death in 1475 of the 5th Duke (10th Ld. Mowbray), who left only a daughter, to whom the Baronies passed, whilst the higher honours became extinct. She was affianced to the Duke of York, brother of Edward V., who, with himself, was murdered in the Tower, the lady pre-deceasing. The Baronies now fell into abeyance between the male descendants of the daughters of the 6th Bn., who had respectively married the ancestors of the present lines of Norfolk and Berkeley. The abeyance was determined in favour of John, Lord Howard, to whom the Dukedom was restored, but who fell at Bosworth and was attainted, as stated under "Norfolk." The history of the two houses is now identical, until in 1777, on the death of the 9th Duke and 22nd Bn., the two Baronies fell again into abeyance, whilst the Dukedom passed from this line to the nearest male heir. It was a hundred years later before the abeyance of the Baronies was ended by their conference in 1878 upon the 20th Bn. Stourton. The 1st Peer in this last line was Sir Jno. Stourton (Kt.), a distinguished soldier and statesman, Treasurer of the Royal Household and M.P. for Wilts. and Dorset, and whose descendant now came into this line through the marriage of its 16th Bn. with Winifred, one of the co-heiresses to the Mowbray title. The 8th Bn. was hanged (by a silken cord) for the murder of a former steward of his father's. The 10th was heavily fined on suspicion of complicity in the Gunpowder Plot.

See Longfellow's trans. of Uhland's German ballad 'Das Glück von Edenhall.'—For the Dowager Lady, see under "Brougham and Vaux."

 The 'Luck of Edenhall' is stated to be a glass beaker of an extremely fine material and ornamented with various coloured devices; it is enclosed in a leather case bearing the monogram I H S, which suggests the idea that it had been used for sacramental purposes. It has only a legendary origin, and that is that a group of fairies were suddenly surprised one evening in the mansion grounds, and the cup was taken from them, upon which one of them gave forth the words—

If this glass do break or fall,
Farewell to the luck of Edenhall.

It has not been broken, as Uhland represents.

 'Burke' appends to his notice of this line the curious origin of the family name. In the reign of James III. and during a conflict with the House of Douglas, an ancestor of this present family sought refuge in a smithy and disguised himself as one of the workers. Suspicion however was excited on the arrival of the pursuers, and in his agitation the fugitive struck a false blow, on which one of them rushed upon him, with the words, "Ye're nae smith." But he proved more of an adept at his legitimate calling, so with a hammer and a red-hot bar the smith and he stood on the defensive, rallied the King's followers, and put the pursuers to rout, thus winning from the monarch a grant of lands with the motto "Non arte sed marte." The inventor of the steam-hammer descends from the same ancestry.

Creations. Scot.: Bn. Napier of Merchistoun, 1627; a Bt. (of Thirlestane) 1666. U.K.: Bn. Ettrick, 1872.—The 1st Scottish Peer was Sir Archib. Napier (Kt.), who accompanied James VI. into England, being afterwards made a Judge of Session, a Scottish Privy Councillor, Baronet, and Baron. His father was John Napier, famous to mathematicians as inventor of the Napierian logarithms. The 5th in line was a Baroness, the succession being open to "heirs general whatsoever." Her daughter, who, on the death of her brother, became Mistress of Napier (see Introd., "Marriage of Peeresses"), married Sir Wm. Scott, 2nd Bt. of Thirlestane, but their son, the 6th Bn. and 3rd Bt., resumed the surname of Napier. The 1st Bn. was, a few weeks before his elevation to the Peerage, created Baronet of Napier; but on the passing of the Barony to a daughter this Baronetcy went to a collateral and became dormant, till in 1837 it was awarded to Wm. Milliken Napier as 8th Bt., by whose grandson it is still held (see "Napier, Bt. of Napier"). The 10th Bn., a K.T. and P.C., who had been Envoy to the United States and Netherlands and Ambassador to Russia and Prussia, Governor of Madras, and Acting Viceroy of India, was given the U.K. Peerage. The ancestor of the house was pronounced to have "na peer," and this saying has given rise to the family name.

NELSON, EARL. HORATIO Nelson, 3rd Earl (U.K.), M.A., a D.L. for Wilts.: son of 2nd E. and gt. nephew of the illustrious naval commander, who was 1st Bn. and only Visc. Nelson, but never an Earl; b. Aug. 7, 1823; suc. 1835 (C.), took his seat 1845 and is "Father" of the H. of Lords.; mar. 1845 the late Lady Mary Jane Diana Agar (d. 1904), dau. of 2nd E. of Normanton. Seat, Trafalgar House, Salisbury.

CREATIONS. U.K.: Bn. Nelson, 1801; Earl Nelson and Visc. Merton of Trafalgar, 1805. "Visc. Trafalgar" has been the eld. son's courtesy-title, but "Visc. Merton" has been substituted since death of the late heir.—"Of Nelson and the North" (still less of the South) there is little need to discourse at any length. After his victory of the Nile the gallant Admiral was first created Bn. N. (1798) and then Visc. N. (1801, after Copenhagen), with no special remainder; three months after this last he was a second time created Bn. N., but with special remainder to his father. In the same year he received the Sicilian honour of Duke of Bronte, for which see further under "Bridport," to which house it passed by marriage. His brother and successor was raised to the Earldom with the now subsisting Viscty.; he was succeeded by his nephew, whose surname of Bolton was exchanged for Nelson. Of the third great naval victory, which was fatal to its hero, it may be worth remarking that the correct pronunciation is as Byron gives it, Trafalgar', and not as we are in the habit of pronouncing the London Square in which his Column stands. His Lordship has informed us that the courtesy-title "Trafalgar" applied to eldest sons is also pronounced with accent on the last syllable.

CREATIONS. Scot.: E. of Newburgh, Visc. of Kynnaird' and Bn. Levingstone, 1660.—Sir Jas. Levingston, 2nd Bt., a staunch supporter of the Royalists, and afterwards a Gentleman of the Bedchamber to Charles II., was created Visc. Newburgh in 1647, but this title, together with the Baronetcy, expired at the death of his son. In 1660, however, the three titles above had been conferred upon the original recipient with remainder to "heirs general;" thus the daughter of the 2nd Earl succeeded. Eventually, through the marriage of the 7th Countess with Marquess Bandini, the line became what it is now—distinctly foreign.

CREATIONS. Eng.: E. of Arundel, feudal title, abt. 1155, confirmed 1433 (still by tenure only, as owner of Arundel Castle); Bn. Maltravers, 1330 (by writ); D. of Norfolk and E. of Surrey, 1483; Bn. Fitzalan of Clun and Oswaldestre, 1627; E. of Norfolk, 1644 (it is a more ancient Earldom of 1312 which was claimed by Lord Mowbray, but disallowed by the Committee of Privileges).—It has been said, "Happy is the nation that has no history," and as the Norfolk Dukedom has had a very notable history, it follows that its career has been very far from a happy one. In fact, extinction, attainder, forfeiture, beheading, followed to an heir by pardon and restoration, have dogged its course for generation and centuries. Wm. de Albini is given by Nicolas as the 1st Earl of Arundel; the 7th and 9th Earls were both attainted and beheaded (1326 and 1397), but the honours were restored. Jno. Maltravers, 1st Bn. of that title, was proclaimed a traitor in the year of his investiture, but restored some 22 years later. His grandson succeeded as 6th Earl of Arundel, and henceforth the two lines are associated. The 13th Earl was attainted, but the title was restored to the 14th: later on he was created Earl of Norfolk. This last title, as noted above, had been previously created in 1312, the recipient being Thos. Plantagenet surnamed De Brotherton, 5th son of King Edward I., who was also the first to receive the title of Earl Marshal (there had been "Marshals' in the family before him), which continued in the line and was revived at or soon after each fresh creation. The Dukedom had its beginning in the house of Mowbray (q.v.), the 6th Bn. of that title being made Duke of Norfolk in 1397; but he was banished in the same year, and died either of the plague or of grief. His eldest son was beheaded, but the 2nd son had the dignity restored to him. The 5th Duke of this line left no male issue, so that the Dukedom became extinct, while the Mowbray and Segrave Baronies went into abeyance between daughters. Another extinct creation followed in the person of the infant brother of Edward V., who was murdered with him in the Tower. One of the above co-heiresses, however, married Sir Robt. Howard, and their son Sir Jno. Howard, who had distinguished himself in the French wars of Henry VI., was created 1st Duke of Norfolk of the present line in 1483, along with the titles of Hereditary Earl Marshal and Lord Admiral of England; he also received grants of land in Suffolk, Kent, Cambridge, Wilts., Somerset, and Cornwall, whilst a special provision awarded him £20 a year from the fee-farm at Ipswich "to enable him to keep up the dignity of his office of Earl Marshal." His strong Yorkist tendencies unfortunately led him to cast in his lot with the fortunes of Richard III. His friends expostulated, but in vain, for "Jockey," as they styled him, followed "Dickon" to Bosworth, and fell leading the van of his army. Of course Henry VII. promptly made all his titles a forfeiture, and his son, the Earl of Surrey, the victor of Flodden Field, was also attainted. His however was restored, and in 1514 newly created Duke of Norfolk, ranking as 2nd Duke. His successor was also attainted, but afterwards restored with the precedence of his father. There were two or three separate creations of an Earl of Surrey, two of them being awarded to the heirs of the 1st and 2nd Dukes; but they were followed by forfeitures, and the title became shortly merged in the Dukedom. Henry, Earl of Surrey, son of the 3rd Duke, whom Burke describes as "one of the brightest ornaments of the house of Howard, whose iniquitous execution was the last tyrannical act of Henry VIII.," held thus only a courtesy-title. His father's life was only saved by the death of the tyrant himself, but the 4th Duke, who followed him to the block in 1572, was his grandson. This 4th Duke was attainted and beheaded under Elizabeth in 1572 for communication with Mary Queen of Scots. The feudal Earldom of Arundel was not affected by the attainder, and in 1660 Thos. Howard was restored to the Dukedom with the original precedence of the 1st Duke—i.e. 1483. His brother and successor (as 6th Duke) had already been created Earl of Norwich, Bn. Howard of Castle Rising, and Earl Marshal of England, this office not having been included at the restoration of the Dukedom in 1660. On the death of the 9th Duke in 1777 the Norwich Earldom and Howard Barony expired and the Mowbray and Segrave Baronies fell into their second abeyance, eventually passing to a separate line. The additional name of Fitzalan, which was that of the Earls of Arundel up to 1580, was assumed by the 14th Duke in 1842.

CREATION. Bn. North, Eng. 1554 by writ.—The 1st Bn. was Sir Edward North (Kt.), M.P. for Cambridgeshire and King's Serjeant-at-law. The 5th Bn. married a daughter of Bn. Grey of Werke and was himself created Bn. Grey of Rolleston; and the 6th, who was a General under Marlborough, succeeded as 2nd and last of both these Grey Baronies. The 7th Bn. North was already 3rd Bn. Guilford, and was afterwards created Earl of the same. The 8th Bn., who became 2nd Earl of Guilford, but is commonly known as Lord North—the courtesy-title which he bore throughout the term of his public services—was a distinguished Prime Minister in the earlier part of George III.'s reign. Upon the death of his successor in 1802 the Earldom passed to his brother, whilst the Barony fell into abeyance between his three daughters, until in 1841 there was only one of the three surviving.

CREATIONS. Eng.: E. of Northampton, 1618. U.K.: M. of Northampton, Earl Compton, and Bn. Wilmington, 1812.—Wm. Compton, 2nd Bn. Compton (a title conferred by writ in 1572 upon Sir Hy. Compton), was promoted to be 1st Earl, the Barony, being open to female succession, passing by the marriage of the 5th Earl's daughter into the Townshend Marquessate, and in 1855 falling into abeyance. The 2nd Earl fell on the Royalist side at Hopton Heath, and his successor, who was equally zealous for the same cause, was among the Peers expelled as "Straffordians" for having when M.P. voted against the attainting of the Earl of Strafford. The Marquessate of Northampton was conferred upon the 9th Earl.—The 3rd Marq. assumed the additional name of Douglas, and the 4th that of Maclean; but the name is conventionally Compton only.

CREATIONS. Eng.: A Bt. 1660. Gt. Br.: E. of Northumberland and Bn. Warkworth, 1749; D. of Northumberland and Earl Percy, 1766; Ld. Lovaine, Bn. of Alnwick, 1784; E. of Beverley, 1790. Some former titles of this house have passed to the Dukedom of Atholl, q.v.—Long previous to either of the above creations there were Lords Percy and Earls of Northumberland, the 1st Earl of this line (created 1377) being father of the renowned "Hotspur," for whom and the Battle of Chevy Chase, see under "Hamilton and Brandon." This same Earl with his son effected the dethronement of Richard II. and brought in the House of Lancaster under Henry IV.; but, being dissatisfied with the new monarch, he, with his son "Hotspur" and his brother the Earl of Worcester, attempted to transfer the crown to the Earl of March. "Hotspur" (Sir Henry Percy) fell at Battle Field, Shrewsbury, in 1403; Worcester was beheaded; and Northumberland himself fell in a later battle with the King at Bramham Moor. Both the 2nd and 3rd Earls fell fighting on the side of Henry VI., whilst the 4th was killed in a popular rising occasioned by his indiscreet form of announcement of the harsh refusal of Henry VII. to repeal an obnoxious tax. The 6th Earl in the same line died without issue, and his brother, who would have succeeded, was attainted and executed. The Earl of Warwick was now made Duke of Northumberland by Edward VI., but he too was brought to the block on a charge of treason against Queen Mary by championing the claim of Lady Jane Grey. This had been a totally distinct creation to an equally distinct family, and the Dukedom thereby started proceeded no further; but four years later the Earldom was newly created and restored to the Percy line in the person of the son of the above 6th Earl's brother. He, however, was beheaded by Elizabeth for avowing the Pope's supremacy, whilst his brother and successor was committed to the Tower on the charge of plotting on behalf of Mary Queen of Scots, and he was there put out of the way by means of three bullets. The 9th Earl was imprisoned several years in the Tower on suspicion of complicity in the Gunpowder Plot, being also fined £30,000. Finally, the 11th Earl dying without male issue (we may note by the way the creation of a second Dukedom, awarded by Charles II. to one of his natural sons, but going no further), this older Earldom became extinct, though the daughter succeeded to the Percy Barony. Her eldest son was, in 1722, summoned to the House of Lords by this title, but it is now amongst those which have passed to the Dukedom of Atholl. This Bn. Percy was Algernon Seymour, who by inheritance became Duke of Somerset, and was further created Earl of Northumberland and Baron Warkworth. His son-in-law, Sir Hugh Smithson, 4th Bt., was allowed by special remainder to succeed him in his Northern honours, and further advanced to the Dukedom and the Barony of Lovaine. He thereupon assumed the name of Percy, but it is to be noted that the ancient family of Smithson are the male ancestors of the present line of Peers. The 3rd Duke was Ambassador to France and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; and the 4th, a K.G. and F.R.S., was an Admiral and created Bn. Prudhoe before succession. The Barony of Lovaine, though conferred upon the 1st Duke, was limited in remainder to his second son, but has eventually returned to the original Dukedom. The 2nd Bn. Lovaine was created Earl of Beverley, his son taking the courtesy-title of Lord Lovaine until his succession in 1830 as 2nd Earl. By this Earldom he sat in the House of Lords till 1865, when the death of his cousin the 4th Duke, without issue, brought him the higher Peerage and reunited the titles as above. Previously to this advance his son, the late 6th Duke, had held the same courtesy-title as himself, and sat as Lord Lovaine in the House of Commons; but on his father's elevation his own title became Earl Percy. His bro. Lord Henry H. M. Percy followed him in the same constituency for three years, and then the present Duke held the seat as Earl Percy until 1885.

Walpole, the famous Prime Minister of Georges I. and II., after being made K.G. (the last of the few commoners who were ever so honoured), was in 1742 created Earl of Orford, Visc. Walpole, and Bn. of Houghton. His son, who also held distinguished Government appointments, had many years previously been given the title Bn. Walpole of Walpole, with remainder to the male descendants of his grandfather. The 4th Earl of the older line was Horace Walpole, a noted politician and littérateur, the owner of Strawberry Hill, Twickenham, and 3rd son of Sir Robert. But the latter's brother Horatio had been separately created Bn. Walpole of Wolterton, and to his son Horatio the surviving Barony of Walpole also now passed, he being later on created 1st Earl of Orford in the present line.

Creations. Irel.: E. of Ormonde, 1328; E. of Ossory, 1528; Visc. Thurles, 1536; M. of Ormonde, 1825. (? E. of Carrick or Karryke, 1315, see below, also for Bn. Arklow.) U.K.: Bn. Ormonde, 1821.—Theobald FitzWalter, who accompanied Henry II. into Ireland was created Chief Butler in 1177; his successor assumed the title of Le Botiler, which grew into the family name. James, the 7th Butler, having while a minor paid 2000 marks for liberty "to marry whomsoever he pleased," allied himself accordingly with a granddaughter of King Edward I., and was forthwith created Earl of Ormonde. Their son the 2nd Earl was called "The Noble Earl" by virtue of his royal ancestry. The 3rd Earl purchased in 1391 the Castle of Kilkenny, which has ever since been the family residence. The 5th Earl was by Henry VI. made Earl of Wiltshire, a K.G., and Lord High Treasurer of England; but he was captured by the Yorkists and beheaded. The Earldom was restored by Edward IV. to his brother and heir, a nobleman stated to have been "complete master of all the languages of Europe," and who was sent as Ambassador to several Courts, but who died during a pilgrimage in the Holy Land. The 7th Earl was also attainted, but restored. The 8th, a remote cousin, who succeeded in 1515, had in 1527 to relinquish his title to his predecessor's son-in-law, who was also created Visc. Rochford and Earl of Wiltshire, and was father of Lord Rochford and Anne Boleyn, both beheaded. The dispossessed Earl was given the Ossory Earldom as a solace, and on the death of his rival without male issue was restored to his former title. The 9th Earl, who was made Visc. Thurles, was poisoned, together with his steward and sixteen servants, at a supper at Ely House, Holborn. The 10th, termed "The Black Earl" from his dark complexion, was made by Elizabeth Lord Treasurer of Ireland. The 12th, who became Lord Lieutenant of the same, was created Marquess and afterwards Duke of Ormonde, the latter title in the Peerage of both kingdoms; he was also made Earl of Brecknock in England. He is known as "The Great Duke of Ormonde," but the 2nd Duke was equally distinguished as a military commander under both William III. and Anne; but under George I. he was impeached for high treason, attainted, and deprived of his English titles. He died in exile and his brother succeeded as 3rd Irish Duke, but died childless, whereupon all his titles expired; but the Irish Earldoms and Viscty. passed de jure to the heir male of the family, and at length (1791) were confirmed to the 17th holder of the title of Earl of Ormonde. The 19th Earl was awarded the re-created and existing Marquessate, as also the Imperial Barony. The Irish titles of E. of Carrick (Karrick, Karrik, or Karryke—1315) and Bn. Arklow (1302) have been also ascribed to this Peerage, and Mr. Cokayne regards the former, in one or other of its forms, as probably correct and as having "lapsed unaccountably" (the branching off of the recognised Carrick Earldom may not improbably be the cause); but the Arklow Barony seems shadowy altogether. There have been repeated creations of a Butler Barony in this line (Eng. or U.K.) but the only one extant has passed to the Lucas Barony (late Cowper Earldom)—a daughter of the 1st Bn. Butler having married the 2nd Earl Cowper, to whose successor it reverted in 1871 upon removal of an attainder which had lasted from 1715. The Scottish Barony of Dingwall was also brought into this family by the marriage of the 1st Duke with Eliz. Preston, in her own right; but that also passed to the Lucas line.

PAYNE BARONETCY (Gt. Br. 1737), succession doubtful from 1803, but now claimed as 7th Bt. by Philip Monoux Payne, of Wootton, Bedford. Till December 1900 there was a rival claimant, but his withdrawal leaves the matter undecided, the point for decision being the legitimacy of Sir Jno. Payne, though his position as 3rd Bt. was never challenged during his life. Subsequently, however, legal proceedings were taken, and the legitimacy both of Sir John and of his younger brother, ancestor of the late rival claimant, was ordered to be enquired into; and with this the matter appears to have dropped. The title has been ignored by 'Burke' since 1878, and was mentioned only in "Chaos" by 'Foster.'

CREATIONS. Eng.: E. of Pembroke and Bn. Herbert of Cardiff, 1551; E. of Montgomery and Bn. Herbert of Shurland, 1605. U.K.: Bn. Herbert of Lea, 1861.—Wm. Herbert, statesman and soldier, was created Bn. Herbert of Cardiff, and on the following day Earl of Pembroke. The 4th Earl, who was Lord Chamberlain to Charles I. and Chancellor of Oxford University, obtained the Montgomery Earldom with its accompanying Barony 25 years before succeeding his brother in the older titles. The 8th Earl was made under Anne Lord High Admiral of Gt. Britain and Ireland and a Lord Justice. The present and 13th Earls were sons of Hon. Sidney Herbert (2nd son of 11th Earl), created Bn. Herbert of Lea in 1861 and dying the same year. At his death his eldest son succeeded as 2nd Bn., and in the following year became Earl of Pembroke, the Barony thus merging in the Earldom and adding a third Barony of Herbert to that Peerage. The Earls of Carnarvon are descended from the 8th Earl of Pembroke. Nicolas cites a feudal Barony of Marmion of Tamworth, which was created by Wm. the Conqueror and from which the King's Champions have arisen.

PERTH, Earl of. William Huntly Drummond, 15th Earl, 11th Visc. Strathallan (both Scot.), late Capt. 3rd Batt. Black Watch (Mil.), Chief of Clan Drummond; son of 10th Visc. Strathallan and a remote cousin of 14th Earl: b. Aug. 5, 1871; suc. to Viscty. 1893, to Earldom 1902; unmrrd. Seat, Strathallan Castle, Machany, Perthsh.

Creations. Scot.: Hered. Thane of Lennox, 1070; Hered. Steward of Menteith and Strathearn, 1473; Ld. Drummond of Cargill, 1488; E. of Perth and Ld. Drummond of Stobhall and Montifex, 1605 (remainder to heirs male whatsoever); Ld. Maderty, 1609; Visc. Strathallan and Ld. Drummond of Cromlix, 1686.—The origin of the two earliest titles is quite obscure. Jno. Drummond, a P.C. and Constable of Stirling Castle, who had been employed on various embassies, was created 1st Ld. D. of Cargill. The 4th Ld. was made Earl of Perth, and the 4th Earl was awarded by James II., while in exile, the title of Duke of Perth, which title continued to be used till the death of the 6th titular Duke. By this time the Earldom had become dormant through an attainder, but the nominal succession went to a cousin, whose son was confirmed in the title as 11th Earl. On the death of this last in 1809 the Earldom passed to the line of Melfort (q.v.), and the two Earldoms remained united until 1902, when the decease of the venerable 14th Earl separated them again, on account of the difference in the terms of remainder—that of Melfort, stated to be open to female succession, passing, if such could be proved, to his daughter and only surviving child (who however leaves it dormant), whilst the Perth Earldom went to the nearest male relative, Visc. Strathallan, involving the absorption of his own Viscty. The title of Ld. Maderty was given to the Hon. Jas. Drummond, 2nd son of the 2nd Ld. D. of Cargill (a great grandson of the 1st Ld.), and the 4th Ld. M. was promoted to be Visc. Strathallan. He held a command in the Royalist Army in 1648, and afterwards joined the Marq. of Ormonde in the same cause in Ireland. He was taken prisoner at Worcester, but escaped to Scotland, and on the dispersion of his party there in 1654 he entered the army of Russia. The 4th Visc. was slain at Culloden, and attainder was pronounced against him in the following year. Owing, however, to a verbal inaccuracy in the bill, the title was still assumed, and under the 8th Peer it was legally restored.

Windsor, 1905.—Sir Andrews Windsor (Andrews being his mother's surname), whom Henry VIII. had created a Knight Banneret, was summoned to Parliament by this title. The 6th Bn. was one of the Knights of the Bath whose ceremonial investiture in 1610 is described in our Introduction under the heading of that Order. His successor was created Earl of Plymouth, the title, which is now revived, lasting 1682-1843. The Windsor Barony, however, fell into abeyance on the death of the 12th Bn. (6th Earl of P.) in 1833, and was in 1855 awarded to Lady Harriett Clive. Her husband, the Hon. Robt. Henry Clive, son of 1st Earl of Powis, had died in the previous year, and she now on accession assumed the additional name of Windsor. There had been an earlier abeyance of the Barony, lasting 1642-60.

CREATIONS. Irel.: Bn. Clive (of Plassey), 1762. Gt. Br.: Bn. Clive of Walcot, 1794. U.K.: E. of Powis, Visc. Clive, Bn. Powis, and Bn. Herbert of Chirbury, 1804.—The Irish Barony was conferred upon the famous Indian commander who visited with such condign punishment Suraja Dowlah, author of the atrocities of the "Black Hole." He stormed Calcutta, and afterwards, with only 3,000 men, completely routed Dowlah at the head of 70,000. After this he became Governor of Calcutta and then overthrew the power of the Dutch in India. He continued to be M.P. for Shrewsbury after elevation to the Irish Peerage, but died in 1774 by his own hand. His son and successor received the British and U.K. titles. The earlier Peerages Bn. Herbert of Chirbury and Earl of Powis had been conferred upon Henry Arthur Herbert in 1743 and 1748 respectively. Edwd. Clive, the 1st Earl of the present line, married the daughter of the last Earl of the preceding, who was of the family of Herbert, and that surname his successor the 2nd Earl assumed by licence. Still earlier titles than any of the preceding were the Barony Powis of Powis Castle (1629) and the Marquessate of Powis (1687)—both extinct in 1748. There may also be mentioned the Dukedom of Powis and Marquessate of Montgomery created by James II. after his flight to France—titles, of course, never recognised as valid.

Creations. Scot.: Visc. Drumlanrig and Bn. Douglas of Hawick and Tibbers, 1628; E. of Queensberry, 1633; a Bt. 1669; M. of Queensberry, 1682.—Sir Wm. Douglas, a natural son of the 2nd Earl of Douglas (who fell at "Otwey Chase," as stated under "Hamilton, D." and "Mar") and himself distinguished in the wars with England, received an undated charter of the Drumlanrig Barony. The 9th feudal Bn. Drumlanrig (a title starting before 1383), having entertained James VI. at the time of his accession to the English crown, obtained the Viscty. and then the Earldom, the feudal title disappearing. The 3rd Earl was made Marq. of Queensberry, and in the following year Duke of the same, both creations having a string of lesser titles attached to them. His successor, however, obtained a new patent under which the terms of remainder were altered, the result being that the Dukedom, with all the other titles not cited above, became merged, on the death of the 4th Duke, in the Dukedom of Buccleuch.

READ BARONETCY (Eng. 1641 in name of Reade), extinct 1711, but was assumed in Australia as 9th Bt. by the late Jno. Cecil Read and is now persisted in by his son William Vero (of Arawa, Waverley, N.S.W.). As usual in such cases, the claim is based upon some late-discovered unregistered relative; but no authority whatever makes the slightest mention of such line, and our only information is derived from an Australian newspaper, which gravely charges us all with resting in gross ignorance. Other untraceable titles make their appearance at the Antipodes from time to time; thus in January 1904 there was a report of the death of "Sir Jas. Hamilton, Bt.," and in the following April appeared that of a soi-disant Knight, "Sir H. D. C. Chapelle."

CREATIONS. Scot.: A Bt. 1627; Bn. Reay, 1628; same title U.K. 1881.—Sir Donald Mackay (Kt.) was created a Baronet of Scotland and in the following year a Baron. He had been an active soldier on the Royal side during the Civil War. The 2nd son of the 2nd Bn. served abroad in the Scottish Brigade, and married and settled in Holland, his descendants thus becoming practically Dutch. On the failure of the elder line the succession naturally passed to these last, and Æneas, Bn. Mackay d'Ophemert in Holland, inherited as 10th Bn. Reay. The line has thus been partially British all along, but the procedure of naturalisation was still rendered necessary.

CREATIONS. Eng.: A Bt. 1690 (N.S.). Gt. Br.: Bn. Grantham, 1761. U.K.: Earl de Grey, 1816; Visc. Goderich, 1827; E. of Ripon, 1833; M. of Ripon, 1871.—The Rt. Hon. Sir Thos. Robinson, a cousin of the 5th Bt., a distinguished diplomatist and one of the Secretaries of State, was raised to the Peerage as Bn. Grantham. A Marquessate of De Grey had been created in 1740, and upon its failure the eldest daughter of the Marchss. who was its 2nd and last holder was made Countess de Grey. Her nephew and heir had already many years succeeded as 3rd Bn. Grantham before by her decease the Earldom was brought by special remainder into this line. Earl de Grey's younger brother Fredk. John was created Visc. Goderich and Earl of Ripon; his son, the late Peer, succeeded his father in these titles, then his uncle as Earl de Grey, and ultimately was raised to the Marquessate of Ripon. The above extinct De Grey Marquessate had carried with it a Barony of Lucas, and this passed by regular succession to the daughter who was created Countess; but by the marriage of her successor's (Earl de Grey's) daughter to the 6th Earl Cowper, whilst her father had left no male issue, the Barony went with that daughter into this latter line, and on the extinction of this it became an independent Peerage; but the De Grey Earldom, which was limited to the heirs male of the above Countess and then those of her sister, the wife of the 2nd Bn. Grantham, passed, by the latter descent, to the late Peer, his predecessor's nephew. The late Marquess had been Viceroy of India, and also Sec. of State for War, India, and the Colonies, Lord Pres. of Counc., &c., and late Ld. Privy Seal.

Creations. Scot.: Bn. Roxburghe, 1600; E. of Roxburghe and Bn. Ker of Cessford and Cavertoun, 1616; a Bt. 1625; D. of Roxburghe, M. of Bowmont and Cessford, E. of Kelso, and Visc. Broxmouth, 1707. U.K.: Earl Innes, 1837.—Sir Robt. Ker (Kt.), who had accompanied James VI. into England, was created Bn. Roxburghe and afterwards Earl of the same (with accessory titles). He obtained a charter allowing him to nominate his successor, and his will stipulated that whoever succeeded him should marry one of the daughters of his deceased son Ld. Ker. This contract was carried out by his grandson the Hn. Sir Wm. Drummond, son of his eldest daughter, who had married the 2nd Earl of Perth; he accordingly married Lady Jean Ker, the eldest of Ld. Ker's daus., and his own 1st cousin, and thus succeeded as 2nd Earl of Roxburghe and assumed his predecessor's surname of Ker. The 3rd Earl was lost in the ship 'Gloucester' off the east coast in 1682, when accompanying the Duke of York (who was saved, and was afterwards King James II.) on his return to Scotland. The 5th Earl obtained the Dukedom. The 3rd Duke was a famous collector of books. The 2nd son of the 2nd Earl had succeeded to the now extinct Barony of Bellenden, and the 7th Bn. B. became 4th Duke; but at his death the minor title came to an end and the Dukedom lay dormant for seven years. Another daughter of the above Ld. Ker, the Hon. Margaret Ker, married Sir James Innes, 3rd Bt., and their great grandson, the 6th Bt., became 5th Duke. He had adopted the surname of Innes-Norcliffe on account of his wife's succession to an estate, but on her death he substituted the present name of Innes-Ker. His son the 6th Duke obtained the U.K. Earldom.

RUTHVEN (pron. Rivven, formerly spelt ythven), BARON. WALTER JAMES Hore-Ruthven, h Bn. (Scot.), a D.L. for Perthsh., formerly Capt. Rifle Brigade (served in Crimea, Mutiny, and Abyssinia), and afterwards Major London Scottish R.V.: grandson of 8th Bnss. and son of William Hore-Ruthven, Esq.; b. June 14, 1838; suc. 1854; mar. 1869 Lady Caroline Annesley Gore, dau. of 4th E. of Arran, K.P. Seat, Newland, Gorebridge, Midlothn.

CREATION. Scot.: Ld. Ruthven, 1651. — Sir Thos. Ruthven (Kt.) was the 1st Bn. of the present line, the titles of Ld. Ruthven (1467) and Earl of Gowrie (1581) having been forfeited by attainder in 1600, in consequence of the plot known as the Gowrie Conspiracy: the 1st Ld. R. of the new line was grandson of the 2nd Ld. of the former one. The original patent of this Peerage having been destroyed by fire, a question has been raised as to whether it allowed of descent through a female, and 'Debrett' accordingly treats the present Bn. as a claimant only, he having had three Baronesses among his predecessors. But 'Burke' furnishes a series of facts which show that the succession has never hitherto been considered open to question, whilst the successive Peers have been summoned as Barons or Baronesses to every coronation from that of George II. onwards.

CREATIONS. Eng.: E. of Rutland, 1525; Bn. Manners of Haddon, 1679, by writ; D. of Rutland and M. of Granby, 1703. U.K.: Bn. Roos of Belvoir, 1896.—Thomas Manners, 13th Ld. Roos (see "De Ros," which is the same Peerage), was created 1st Earl of Rutland, the two titles running together until the death of the 3rd Earl, when the Barony went to his daughter who married the Earl of Exeter, but their son was succeeded in the Barony by the 6th Earl of Rutland, thus bringing it back to the former line, the latter Earldom having devolved upon the brother of the 3rd Earl, and so proceeded till, on the death of the 6th Earl just mentioned, it passed with his daughter (his only child) to the line of the Dukes of Buckingham, the 1st of whom she married. On the death of the 2nd Duke it fell into abeyance, out of which it was called in the reign of George III. in favour of Charlotte, wife of Lord Henry FitzGerald, whose descendant is the present Bnss. de Ros. The 9th Earl was made Bn. Manners of Haddon and afterwards elevated to the Dukedom. The late 7th Duke, a K.G. and G.C.B., was repeatedly a Cabinet Minister between 1852 and 1892—variously as First Commissioner of Works (thrice), Postmaster-General (twice), and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.
